FIGHT TO FINISH AGAINST TWO-THIRDS RULE IS ROOSEVELT ANSWER TO COMPROMISE PLEA

MURDER CHARGE CONFRONTS BANDIT CAUGHT IN FLORIDA

Acting on Tip From Savannah, Officers Apprehend Slippery Criminal Who Last Escaped While Serving 145-Year Term.

DEATH OF TRUSTY LAID TO PRISONER

Smith To Be Tried for Killing John Williams in Auto Escape From Georgia State Farm.

Aubrey Smith, one of Georgia's most notorious criminals, who six months ago escaped from the state prison at Milledgeville, was captured Friday afternoon by Florida officers in Duval county, about 10 miles north of Jacksonville.

Second only to Leland Harvey in prison escapes, Smith's capture ended a half year's liberty stolen when he, Roy Gardner, another desperado, and Abe Powers, members of the one-time notorious Floyd Woodward bunco ring of Atlanta, sawed their way out of a cage in the tuberculosis section of the prison camp, and killed a trusty who tried to prevent their get-away in a stolen automobile.

At the time of his escape Smith was under prison sentences totaling 145 years for various crimes ranging from theft of an automobile to a series of armed highway and public robberies.

Acting on a tip said to have been given them by Savannah police, Smith and two companions—a man and a woman—were arrested by the Florida road patrol at a tourist camp 10 miles north of Jacksonville. The Florida officers said Smith readily admitted his identity and they took him to the Duval county jail at Jacksonville.

Proctor to Get Prisoner.

Captain W. L. Proctor, of the Georgia state prison, said late Friday he had talked with Jacksonville officers over the telephone and that he planned to leave at once for that city to bring Smith back to state prison. He probably will be incarcerated in the death cell, it was said, where his old pal, Harvey, has been imprisoned since his recapture a few months ago in Detroit after an escape even more sensational than that of Smith, and which preceded Smith's getaway by two or three days.

Although there is the remainder of the 145-year sentences hanging over his head, an ironical twist of justice may shorten it considerably—by sending the notorious prisoner to the electric chair instead of back to a cell, it was announced by Judge Vivian Stanley, of the state prison commission, Friday afternoon that Smith will

Special Meeting of Fulton Commission Called. Taxpayers' League Voices Opposition to Levy.

In a special meeting scheduled for 10 o'clock this morning, members of the Fulton county commission will consider advisability of levying an additional one-mill tax this year for the purpose of alleviating to some extent the suffering among Atlanta and Fulton county's unemployed and other unfortunates.

The one-mill increase will come up for consideration the second time this year, the commissioners having previously reached a tentative decision to levy the extra tax, if necessary, only to abandon the plan later. Renewed activity in the interests of the distressed and suffering has caused the additional levy to come to the fore once more, and a decision probably will be reached this morning by the commissioners.

Unequivocal opposition to any tax increase in Fulton county this year was voiced Friday in a statement issued following a meeting of officials of the Taxpayers' league "because there is a concerted attempt by the county commissioners to saddle on us the responsibility for opposing funds for the charities when we consistently opposed cutting these funds from the budget." Also, the league said, "we have every reason to believe that it is

Fox Theater Closed For Indefinite Period

NEW YORK, June 24.—(AP)—William E. Atkinson, president and receiver of Fox Theaters Corporation, Friday said that nothing had yet been decided as to the future of the Fox theater in Atlanta. That house has been operated by Loew's, Inc., under a special arrangement with Fox Theaters, lessees of the theater, and Loew's have announced they will not run the theater after tonight.

"We have not had time to decide on the future policy of the Fox in Atlanta," Mr. Atkinson said, "and probably will not be in position to make any announcement for some time."

This means that the theater, largest in the Georgia city, will be dark after the final performance tonight.

2 Carolina Governors Will Back Roosevelt

CHICAGO, June 24.—(AP)—The governor of North Carolina said to the governor of South Carolina today—he was for Franklin D. Roosevelt.

And the governor of South Carolina replied that he was too.

As the governors—Max Gardner, of North Carolina, and Ibra C. Blackwood, of South Carolina—posed for pictures, someone shouted to the latter:

"Tell Max that South Carolina corn is better than North Carolina corn."

Gardiner beamed a broad smile and said:

"You're wrong."

GERMANY, FRANCE LAY DOWN VIEWS ON REPARATIONS

BY SAMUEL DASHIELL.

LAUSANNE, June 24.—(UP)—In the friendly atmosphere of a conference room, Germany today indirectly informed France why it seems impossible for Germany ever to resume reparations payments and, in turn, France explained why the reich should pay more after recovering from the present economic crisis.

Then, with the two countries most vitally concerned having laid down their opposing views, their economic experts decided to meet again tomorrow and prepare a plan to be discussed Monday by French Premier Edouard Herriot and German Chancellor Franz Von Papen.

The conference was held, Herriot

Garage Man Killed In Fall From Truck

Byron Donaldson, 26, operator of a garage at Northside drive and Moore's Mill road, was killed late Friday afternoon when he missed his footing while trying to swing upon a county truck near his garage, and fell beneath the wheels of the three-and-a-half-ton machine loaded with concrete. He was taken to Grady hospital, where he died a few hours later.

Donaldson, according to W. G. Mahaffey, a guard on the truck, wanted to ride a short distance. The driver of the truck, Tom Moulder, did not see Donaldson, it was said. He was absolved of blame. Fulton county police are conducting an investigation. The convicts were returning to the West convict camp after working on the new convict camp in old Milton county.

State's Democratic Leaders See Overwhelming Victory

Dinner Given by Prominent Atlantan and Delegate to Democratic Convention in 1900 Regarded as Good Omen.

An overwhelming victory, both at Chicago next week and in the November election, was predicted by Georgia delegates to the national convention who gathered at a dinner given them by Colonel Jack J. Spalding, a member of the delegation, at the Capital City Club Friday night.

Final preparations for the trip, by a special de luxe convention train, were outlined on the eve of embarking for the convention city, and Governor Richard B. Russell Jr., chairman of the delegation, was instructed to appoint Georgia's member of the rules, permanent organization and resolutions committees, subject to approval of the first caucus of the delegation. This is to be held in the Auditorium hotel at 8 o'clock Sunday night.

The delegates will leave Atlanta tonight at 7 o'clock over the Southern railway. At Harriman Junction, in Tennessee, the special train will be consolidated with coaches carrying the delegates from North and South Carolina. All three southern delegations will go instructed for Roosevelt.

Governor Russell, arriving a few minutes late after attending an all-day Masonic celebration at Hephzibah, paid tribute to Colonel Spalding, whose interest in national democratic affairs went back to 1888, when Grover Cleveland was first nominated and elected president.

"I feel," Governor Russell said, "that this dinner by Colonel Spalding

SCOTT CANDLER NEW LEGION CHIEF

MACON, Ga., June 24.—(AP)—Scott Candler, mayor of Decatur, was elected commander of the Georgia American Legion this afternoon to succeed Quimby Melton, editor of the Griffin News.

Miss Leila Summerall, Waycross, was made president of the Legion Auxiliary Friday morning. Miss Summerall is retiring first vice president and was unanimously accepted as head of the department along with the entire slate of officers presented by the nominating committee.

The Legionnaires Friday afternoon voted 233 to 132 to table three different proposals regarding immediate cash payment of the bonus after a fiery session during which hundreds of members were on their feet.

The proposals, in the form of resolutions, were:

The first, approved by the resolution committee, of which Basil Stockbridge, of Atlanta, is chairman, to oppose payment.

Second, by Harvey Kennedy, of Barnesville, to refer the question to all posts in the state.

Third, by H. B. Edwards, of Valdosta, candidate for governor, to demand immediate payment.

Out of Order.

At the conclusion of the roll call votes on a motion to table all three resolutions, Mr. Edwards rose and tried to make a motion that an address by Harry Colmery, national legislative chairman of the legion, in which he advised against demands for payment, be stricken from the records. The convention earlier in the morning had voted to publish the address in the Georgia Legionnaire. Quimby Melton, state commander, ruled him out of order.

Mr. Colmery, speaker at the morning session, defended the legislative program of the legion but said it was

ADDITIONAL WHEAT VOTED FOR RELIEF

WASHINGTON, June 24.—(AP)—The senate today passed a bill authorizing the Red Cross to use an additional 50,000,000 bushels of farm board wheat for relief.

The senate substituted its own bill for the measure already passed by the house under which the Red Cross would get 40,000,000 bushels of wheat and 500,000 bales of cotton.

The bill went through by unanimous consent and without debate and will now go to conference with the house measure to compose differences between the two branches.

President Hoover later in the day attacked two phases of the pending Wagner-Garner relief bill, saying they made it "pork barrel" legislation.

The chief executive in a statement read to newspapermen, renewed his criticism of the $500,000,000 bond issue proposal in the Wagner measure and the $1,300,000,000 bond issue item in the Garner bill.

The president's statement came a short while after the house had sent the measure to conference to adjust differences between the two branches of congress.

Simultaneously Mr. Hoover assailed proposals to distribute the $300,000,000 relief fund to states on the basis of their population rather than their need.

"There is, however," he asserted, emphatically a possibility of immediately rectifying the destructive factors and delinquencies of the bill. The senate bill and the house bill differ totally in text.

"I am advised that it is within the power of the conferees to rewrite the bill perfecting the fine, constructive provisions and eliminating these wholly destructive proposals.

"I earnestly hope that this may be done."

Revolt Topples Siamese Throne In Absence of King Prajadhipok

BANGKOK, Siam, June 24.—(AP)—One of the world's few remaining absolute monarchies toppled today when the army and navy of this picturesque land suddenly revolted and set up a "constitutional monarchy."

The coup was almost bloodless. The army chief of staff was believed shot to death, however, by his own men, when he resisted their demands for surrender.

Most of the royal family was captured immediately by the soldiers and sailors who invaded the principal royal palace. Several government officials and cabinet ministers were also taken.

The navy commanders ordered a warship to bring back as prisoners King Prajadhipok and his consort from Huahin, where they are spending a royal holiday.

The mass of the people apparently took no part in the movement, and the main city was quiet.

In fact, the capital was taken completely by surprise when the uniformed lines poured into the city afoot and in army tanks.

The army and navy leaders announced they intended to deliver the country from the government of princes.

Dispatches relayed through Paris and Berlin differed in some respects from direct word from Bangkok.

U. S. and England Agree On Similar Arms Policies

BY HENRY T. RUSSELL.

(Copyright, 1932, by the United Press.)

LONDON, June 24.—(UP)—The United States and Great Britain have reached an unwritten "gentleman's agreement" that they will follow the same disarmament policy and that reparations payments must cease, it was declared tonight upon the most reliable authority.

The agreement would be effective only in event of failure of the Geneva disarmament conference and the Lausanne reparations conference.

This authority said the agreement also provides for the United States to grant Britain special debt reductions, or a moratorium, to be announced after the United States elections—provided, of course, that the present administration is returned to office.

The news of this understanding probably will be vigorously denied in official quarters, but it was given to the United Press by an excellent source. The negotiations were conducted chiefly in London, by American Ambassador Andrew W. Mellon, acting upon cabled instructions from Washington.

Mellon conferred with Foreign Secretary Sir John Simon and other high officials of the foreign office. The chief object of the negotiations was to prevent a European collapse, which was feared in event of failure of the Geneva and Lausanne conferences.

The negotiations were understood to have been proceeding for some time, but they have been pressed in the last few days.

The significance of the agreement is that, in event a general agreement to abolish reparations and reduce armaments cannot be achieved by the nations, Britain presumably will undertake to abandon reparations pay-

Georgia's Delegation Will Be Minus Erwin

ATHENS, Ga., June 24.—When the democratic convention opens next Tuesday at Chicago the Georgia delegation will be minus one member who took a prominent part in at least two recent conventions—Andrew C. Erwin, of Athens.

Mr. Erwin has found he will be unable to attend the convention this year, although he was elected a delegate. His credentials have been delivered to Dr. S. V. Sanford, president of the University of Georgia. Erwin has attended every national convention since 1920, and at Madison Square Garden one of the convention features was his speech

ROOSEVELT AIDES SEIZE LEADERSHIP IN PLATFORM BODY

BY D. HAROLD OLIVER.

CHICAGO, June 24.—(AP)—Leaders for Governor Franklin D. Roosevelt took command of the democratic platform-writing committee today and prepared to draft a party declaration for 1932 calling for submission of prohibition repeal and a new economic deal.

An impressive array of democratic leaders was named on the resolutions subcommittee of nine charged with drawing a tentative platform. A proposal of William G. McAdoo that the subcommittee be named was adopted and he was made a member.

Gilbert M. Hitchcock, of Nebraska, the chairman, headed the subcommittee, whose members included Senators Wheeler, of Montana, and Hull of Tennessee; A. Mitchell Palmer, Washington, D. C.; Joseph C. O'Mahoney, of Wyoming, and William A. Comstock, of Michigan, all of the Roosevelt group.

Others on the subcommittee are

$700,000 Fire Wrecks Macon Bank Building

MACON, Ga., June 24.—(AP)—Fire that swept through the Citizens and Southern National Bank's seven-story office building here tonight, and was still burning furiously at midnight, caused a loss in excess of $700,000, according to fire officials. Nothing but a shell remained from the fourth floor up and on lower floors there was believed to be practically a total loss. At midnight the roof fell in.

Other structures in the retail district apparently were saved from fire loss though some will have water damage, firemen said. Doctors, lawyers, dentists, and insurance agents occupied the building.

While the fire was at its height the bank made arrangements to open offices tomorrow morning in the old Fourth National Bank building.

Figures of Great Chieftains See Gray Lines Pass in Review

BY HEYWOOD BELL.

RICHMOND, Va., June 24.—(AP)—Gray clad heroes of the southland today paraded through the capital they once defended, and passed in review in the shadows of bronze figures of their great chieftains.

They came in automobile-borne ranks, but aged bodies shook aside the ravages of time, and every back was erect, and every head was turned aloft in a courageous salute as 1,000 veterans passed the statues of Lee, Jackson and Stuart—the climax of the forty-second United Confederate Veterans reunion.

From the Virginia capital, which to them is still the capital of the Confederacy they once knew, down Richmond's Monument avenue—a boulevard famed for its statues of southern heroes—the veterans came in a five-mile parade, led by Major John Crowley, of New Orleans, who insisted on walking to carry the general's colors.

It was he who gave cue to his comrades for a reverent salute as they passed General Robert E. Lee, astride Traveler, and facing the southland, and again as they passed Jackson the scout, looking to the north which never saw his back, and to the stout-hearted Stuart, the cavalier of the Confederacy, and again for Jefferson Davis, the only president of the Confederate States of America.

It was a colorful spectacle, with military organizations, of vivid history, gay with the panoply of war and the festoons of peace, pretty maidens—sponsors and maids of honor, the escorts of those staunch survivors of the gallant armies of Tennessee, trans-Mississippi and northern Virginia.

Everywhere were the banners of the Confederacy. The Stars and Bars, and the battle flag were fluttering in the glory that was theirs in the Confederate capital 70 years ago, not in defiance, but in proud kinship to the Stars and Stripes under whose

3 DELEGATIONS FOR ROOSEVELT WIN RECOGNITION

Long's Louisianans, Hoidale's Minnesotans and Porto Ricans Favoring Governor Recognized.

BY RALPH WHEATLEY.

CHICAGO, June 24.—(AP)—With Roosevelt leaders in the saddle, the Huey Long delegation from Louisiana, the Einar Hoidale delegation from Minnesota, and the Mrs. John S. Whittemore delegation from Porto Rico, favoring Franklin D. Roosevelt for president, were recognized by the democratic national committee tonight over contesting delegations and placed on the temporary convention roll.

The contests were heard in an atmosphere that alternated between near physical combat and high humor, shouts and laughter and the word "lie" rung through the hall. Several times peacemakers grabbed their spokesmen to prevent fights, and John J. Raskob, chairman, pounded his gavel to drown out the chorus of protests.

The same fight will be carried on, to the credentials committee when it is appointed Monday by the convention, and it is not unlikely that at least one of the contests will reach

Auto Plant Employe Is Killed in Accident

Ralph R. Doak Jr., about 30 years of age, who was employed in the painting department of the Ford Motor Company assembling plant on Ponce de Leon avenue, was killed early Friday afternoon when he was struck in the head by a piece of machinery at the assembling plant. Death was almost instantaneous.

Listed on the Ford payroll as a paint chemist, Doak was at work in the assembly department of the plant when a revolving end of a machine struck him in the head, crushing his skull. He was placed in an ambulance and sent to Georgia Baptist hospital, but was pronounced dead on arrival.

Doak is survived by his parents, Mr. and Mrs. R. R. Doak Sr., of Kansas City, Mo., and a sister, Miss Betty Doak, Atlanta. Funeral arrangements have not been made, it was announced Friday night at H. M. Patterson & Son, where the body was taken.

ROOSEVELT CHIEF SCORNS REQUEST FOR COMPROMISE

"We Have the Votes," Is Manager's Reply to Pat Harrison's Plea That the Majority Yield for Sake of Harmony.

SMITH WILL LEAD BATTLE ON FLOOR

Fight Will Be Made To Prevent Deadlock of Convention Under Old Rule for Nomination.

MOVE IS LAUDED BY RALEIGH TIMES

RALEIGH, N. C., June 24.—(UP)—Raleigh Times says: "If Roosevelt succeeds in abolishing the two-thirds rule the party will owe him an undying debt of gratitude, for nothing has done more to discredit its candidates and defeat them before the race is started than this unfair restriction. It has made democratic conventions the blunt of jests and converted serious business into fiasco."

BY EDWARD J. DUFFY.

CHICAGO, June 24.—(AP)—"No compromise!" was the determination in the big Roosevelt and scattered opposition camps tonight on the two scraps facing the democrats before they start the presidential nomination votes.

James A. Farley said "no" to an appeal by Senator Harrison, of Mississippi, for the Roosevelt forces to drop the attempt to alter the two-thirds rule.

Alfred E. Smith laid plans to take the convention floor Tuesday against changing the time-honored rule, and predicted it would be kept.

Farley, also in a talk with reporters, was just as confident both that some form allowing for a majority vote to nominate would be approved and that Senator Walsh, of Montana, would be elected permanent chairman. "We have the votes," he said.

Matter of Keeping Word.

Smith insisted the anti-Roosevelt line-up would not compromise backing of Jouett Shouse against Walsh for the permanent chairmanship. He called it a matter of principle, of "keeping your word."

All in all, as conferences dragged on into the night, there were signs of a stiffening of the lines for and against the New York governor.

Those for him professed to be happy over the turn of events, saying their enemies have been put on the defensive by the maneuver to drop the two-thirds rule. Those against him said the step helped their cause by solidifying the anti-Roosevelt sentiment.

"When we make a move we go straight through," Farley said when informed of the Mississippi senator's suggestion that the struggle be dropped.

FIGHT TO FINISH ON MINORITY RULE

Asked if the Roosevelt forces were determined to make the fight at the earliest possible moment in the convention, Fairley said:

"If you attempt to abrogate the rule you might as well do it at once."

The Roosevelt field marshal said reaction to the plan to abolish the rule was "entirely favorable" and added he was "entirely satisfied with the situation."

Suggests Compromise.

Harrison had suggested a compromise whereby Jouett Shouse, executive director of the democratic national committee, might make a speech and later Senator Walsh could take over the permanent chairmanship.

Farley said, "We suggested to Shouse a long time ago that he make any speech he wanted to before the convention, but he declined it and his friends insisted that he be made permanent chairman.

"It is agreeable to us for Shouse to make any kind of a speech now, but we are going to fight for Walsh for permanent chairman," Farley added.

Questioned as to whether he thought it in accordance with democratic principles to abrogate the two-thirds rule, Farley replied he did.

Farley said that "friends of any other candidates in the same position as we are would do the thing best suited to the interest of their candidates."

Smith Seeks Deadlock.

If Alfred E. Smith succeeds in the strategy that delegate circles attributed to him this afternoon, the bitterness will be carried over into roll call after roll call on the nomination proper. How to avert another Madison Square Garden debacle, especially since they are confronted with a situation that might bring one, occupied more than one neutral democratic mind tonight.

It was a conference between the two principals in that hot and long battle—Smith and William Gibbs McAdoo—that led to the belief today that the former was heading up the forces against Roosevelt.

One of the recourses is to have the "favorite son" blocks of votes stay out, so long as the New York governor is in the running. To what extent the states affected would abide by that remains to be seen.

Reports of the drive against the two-thirds rule solidifying the opposition to Roosevelt had no perceptible effect on Farley's confidence.

Repudiating suggestions for compromising either on that or the permanent chairmanship, he said "friends of any other candidate in the same position as we are would do the thing best suited to the interest of their candidate."

Claim Majority.

The Roosevelt manager claims more than a majority of the convention delegates, and only last night the Al Smith headquarters conceded 570 votes—eight short of a majority—to Roosevelt.

The Farley expectation is that the convention will readily accept Walsh as permanent chairman, the first hurdle; then approve nomination by a majority instead of two-thirds, and ultimately select Roosevelt that way.

Much speculation was aroused by the declaration of John F. Curry, heading the formidable Tammany delegation, that it would "fight to the last" the attempt to abandon the rule. Care was quickly taken to pass the word, however, that this did not necessarily mean the Tammany vote would be against Roosevelt on the nomination call.

J. Bruce Kremer, of Montana, was selected by the Roosevelt people to head the rules committee which will get to work Monday on the proposed shift in the nomination requirements.

Governor Ritchie, of Maryland, was noisily paraded from his special train to his hotel on arrival today to join the array of candidates already here. It was the first real demonstration put on yet.

Another celebrity that brought thousands of Chicagoans to the curbs to watch him drive from train to hotel was Mayor Walker, of New York. Neither of them lost any time getting into the thick of the conferences that already are running into all hours of the night.

Ritchie withheld any expression of opinion on the two-thirds rule, pending consultation with the Maryland delegation. If he follows the course of the other favorite son candidates and proponents here, it will be decidedly against the Roosevelt aims.

Intense Feeling.

As an example of the intensity of feeling, such a regular democrat as Senator Glass, of Virginia, declared today:

"I wouldn't support any man who takes the short cut that way. If the democrats want to recommend abolition of the rule at the next convention, that's different but to pull a snap play like this in the middle of the game is not playing the game, as I see it."

He is backing former Governor Byrd, of Virginia, for the nomination.

Other samples of what was said among the anti-Roosevelts follow:

James A. Reed, Missouri's favorite son candidate:

"The rule was good enough for Andrew Jackson and it should be good enough for 1932. I think it is a very grave step."

"Alfalfa Bill" Murray, governor of Oklahoma:

"Why, we'll destroy our party if we destroy the two-thirds rule. If the Roosevelt people put it over, it will mean a third party."

Representative Rayburn, chief of the Texans here backing Speaker Garner:

"Americans have been bred to believe it unfair to change the rules in the middle of the game."

The routine of organization for the convention made some headway during the day, with the resolutions committee taking testimony on suggestions for the platform. It set up a subcommittee to draft various planks.

Roosevelt Victory.

The party's national committee, at the behest of Roosevelt letaders, consented to hear the contests of delegations from Louisiana, Minnesota, and Puerto Rico instead of adhering to the original plan for a subcommittee to do the job. Decisions were not expected until after hours of testimony and study of the cases.

Meanwhile, those in charge of the democratic "victory fund" campaign reported $719,587 of the million and a half dollars sought had been contributed. Some $200,000 more has been promised to defray convention expenses.

Smith expressed the conviction that the two-thirds rule would be kept.

"I don't believe there is any sentiment for it among the delegates," he said. "The two new generals started it."

"What generals?" he was asked.

"Generals Long and Wheeler," replied Smith, referring to Senator Long, of Louisiana, and Wheeler, of Montana, in the Roosevelt group.

Rejects Compromise.

Smith also flatly turned down a suggestion of a compromise on the permanent chairmanship offered earlier in the day by Harrison. He said he would stand by Jouett Shouse as against Senator Walsh of Montana, who is supported by the Roosevelt-ians.

"You can't compromise with a principle," snapped Smith to newspapermen. "There is a principle in the Shouse-Walsh fight. The principle involved is keeping your word."

"Will you quit the convention if the two-thirds rule is abrogated?"

"I never quit."

"What will you do if it is abrogated?"

"I don't think it will be."

Smith was asked about his views of abolishing the two-thirds rule if a "deadlock developed."

"That is worse than abrogation at once," he retorted.

Smith said there was "absolutely nothing" to reports that he would withdraw if Governor Roosevelt would.

OLD RULE ABOLITION FAVORED BY ANDERSON

MACON, Ga., June 24.—(AP)—Abolition of the two-thirds rule for nominating democratic presidential candidates, and adaptation of a new attitude towards prohibition should be objectives of the party's national convention in Chicago next week, W. T. Anderson, Macon publisher who is a member of the Georgia delegation to the convention, said today.

"The two-thirds rule is undemocratic," he said. "It is based on the thoroughly discredited belief that a candidate who receives two-thirds of the convention votes is more popular with the party than one who receives only a bare majority. In actual practice, it has served only to confuse and distract the party and in many instances send delegates home with little enthusiasm for their final choice."

Mr. Anderson, who will join other Georgia delegates in Atlanta to leave for Chicago on a special train at 7 p. m. Saturday, said he hoped to see the national party adopt the attitude that prohibition is primarily a moral issue and should be decided by the rank and file of voters. He offered an entirely new plan for handling the subject: That democrats and republicans agree to head their respective tickets with a straight-out vote "for prohibition, against prohibition," the candidates of both parties to be bound by the final tally.

"Personally I am against prohibition because it has capitalized the criminal," he said.

WHITE SAYS DRY LAW CANNOT BE ENFORCED

COLUMBUS, Ohio, June 24.—(AP) Supplementing his recent pronouncement in favor of "good beer" and submission of an amendment to repeal the 18th amendment, Governor White today declared that federal prohibition cannot be enforced "at the present time."

His statement issued, the governor said, because of numerous inquiries as to his belief in the possibility of enforcing the 18th amendment, said in part:

"As to whether the 18th amendment could have been enforced, I, nor no one else will ever know. I know that it cannot be enforced at the present time for this reason: Law enforcement is predicated upon the belief and custom that law enforcement will follow. . . . Its enforcement and life were placed in the hands of the administration . . . charged duly . . . to vigorously emphasize each letter in its terms.

"By continued republican indifference to law enforcement this amendment has now become a controversial question which is impossible of enforcement because it has now passed from the realm of the physical to the realm of mental and legislation cannot affect or govern mental processes."

WILSON DECLARES BORAH COULD MAKE GOOD RACE

PORTLAND, Ore., June 24.—(AP)—The belief that Senator Borah, of Idaho could "cut quite a figure" running on a dry platform as presidential candidate of a third party, was expressed here today by Dr. Clarence True Wilson, dry leader.

However, the head of the Methodist Episcopal church board of temperance prohibition and public morals explained in an interview he does not advocate a third party and does not know what stand he will take in the coming presidential campaign.

LONG SEES ROOSEVELT FIRST-BALLOT WINNER

CHICAGO, June 24.—(AP)—Senator Huey Long, of Louisiana, today said he had made reservations to leave Chicago for his home state next Wednesday night because "it'll be all over the first ballot and Governor Roosevelt will receive the nomination."

"After the first ballot we are leaving," Long said.

Asked if he were interested in the vice presidential nomination, he said:

"We'll see about that, but the shouting will be over after the first ballot on the presidency."

WET GROUP REPORTS EXPENDITURES, RECEIPTS

WASHINGTON, June 24.—(AP)—The Association Against the Prohibition Amendment reported to the house clerk today that its expenditures from January 1 to May 31 had totaled $150,464 and its receipts $177,251.

From March 1 to May 31, the report said, expenses were $76,049 and receipts of more than $100 were $49,358.

For the same period, however, the association received $26,000 in donations of less than $100.

ROOSEVELT IS SILENT ON ABOLITION OF RULE

ALBANY, N. Y., June 24.—(AP)—Governor Franklin D. Roosevelt sent word to newspapermen today that he was "too busy" to answer queries of the correspondents that his backers would seek, at the outset of the Chicago democratic convention, to abolish the two-thirds nominating rule.

The New York governor is in daily telephone contact with James A. Farley, field marshal for the Roosevelt forces at Chicago.

LOGUE DECLARES SMITH TO GAIN IN PENNSYLVANIA

PHILADELPHIA, June 24.—(AP)—Thomas A. Logue, one of the leaders of the Alfred E. Smith forces in Philadelphia, left for Chicago today predicting that Smith will have 34 Pennsylvania votes on the first ballot for the presidential nomination.

"That leaves 42 for Governor Roosevelt," said Logue, "and on each succeeding ballot his support from Pennsylvania will decrease."

MACK LEAVES NEW YORK TO NOMINATE ROOSEVELT

POUGHKEEPSIE, N. Y., June 24.—(AP) — With the 2-000-word speech he will use to nominate Governor Roosevelt for the presidency tucked away in a brief case, but without convention credentials, John E. Mack, of Poughkeepsie, who first nominated Roosevelt for a public office, left today for the Chicago convention.

Mr. Mack, accompanied by his son, John Jr., will reach Chicago tomorrow morning.

Mack was not concerned with the detail of his credentials, leaving that to the democratic state organization to work out. He was not chosen as a delegate or alternate.

Mr. Mack, a tall, robust attorney of 56 years, nominated Roosevelt for state senator 22 years ago.

Roosevelt's Leaders Greeted by Telephone

CHICAGO, June 24.—(AP)—Forty leaders of the Roosevelt-for-President movement, who conferred tonight over convention strategy, heard a message from Governor Roosevelt, spoken over the telephone from Albany and amplified in the conference room by a loud-speaker.

The governor, in a few words, thanked the assembled leaders, who had come together for an intensive check-up of their delegate strength. Those present said no decisions on policy were reached.

Hague's Attack on Roosevelt Seen as Aid to New Yorker

Democrats in Congress Commend Fight for Abrogation of Contested Two-Thirds Rule.

BY GLADSTONE WILLIAMS.

WASHINGTON, June 24.—The announcement by Roosevelt leaders at Chicago that they are determined to make a fight for the abrogation of the 100-year-old two-thirds nominating rule was generally applauded here today by democratic leaders in congress who see in the move a precautionary step to save the party from a possible disastrous deadlock.

Even those democrats who visualize the nomination of Governor Franklin D. Roosevelt, of New York, on the first ballot under the old rule are convinced for the most part that it is the greater part of wisdom to move the abandonment of the ancient rule and thus take no chances on a fatal imbroglio, such, for example, as that which wrecked the Madison Square Garden convention eight years ago.

By announcing their determination to abolish the rule and place the convention on the more democratic basis of a simple majority, the Roosevelt leaders, it is held, served notice on the small group of defeatist candidates that their efforts to deadlock the convention will be futile. Regardless of the antagonism raised by abrogating the rule, the more sober-minded leaders of the party feel that this course is infinitely better than the alternative of a prolonged deadlock with all the bitterness that may be engendered.

As viewed from Washington there seems little doubt of the ability of the Roosevelt forces to command sufficient votes for abrogation of the rule, which will require only a simple majority if the measure is acted upon at the initial permanent organization of the conclave. The action of Mayor Frank Hague, of Jersey City, manager of the Alfred E. Smith campaign, in delivering his intemperate attack on Governor Roosevelt Thursday, is looked upon here as having all the elements necessary to cement the Roosevelt following into a cohesive group ready to go to any extremes to defeat the purposes of their opponents.

Incidentally, an admission of failure on the part of the stop-Roosevelt forces is seen in the "official" computation of strength of the various contenders put out by Smith headquarters in Chicago. The statement gave Governor Roosevelt a total of 570 delegates, just eight short of a majority of the convention, but listed as doubtful the 30 votes of Indiana, 25 of which the Roosevelt people claim; the 24 votes of Minnesota, every one of which will go to Roosevelt despite a contest raised by an opposing delegation, and the 94 votes of New York, at least half of which will go to Roosevelt without any question—probabilities are that all of them will be his.

But the significant thing about the Smith "official" computation is that Roosevelt is conceded to have 570 delegates over which there is no contest. Evidently the Smith people look on these delegates as absolutely airtight or some excuse would be advanced for placing a part of them in the alleged doubtful column. As it is, they stretched the figures further than the facts warrant when they included in the Smith total 34 of the 76 Pennsylvania delegates, together with 10 from Porto Rico and the Canal Zone.

A more accurate computation of the "official" count would be to give Roosevelt upwards of 60 from Pennsylvania, all of Minnesota, at least 50 of New York and all of the negligible 10 from the two territorial possessions. This would have the effect of increasing the total to approximately 670, which is within a score of what the Roosevelt leaders claim. More important, it represents a majority control of something like 100, enough to give friends of the New York executive full mastery over the convention.

Privately, Mayor Hague was roundly condemned today for the abusive character of his attack on the leading candidate for the nomination. "Intemperate" is the mildest expression used by congressional democrats in describing it.

The outright dishonesty of his statement was evident in several references. He was careful to list all of the opposing candidates as capable of winning an election which he said Governor Roosevelt would lose if nominated. Even Alfalfa Bill Murray, with all of his weird nostrums and proved unpopularity outside of his own state, was honored with the lot. He spoke of the ability of anyone but Roosevelt carrying his own state of New Jersey, when Smith, the only one of the defeatist group whom he really favors, lost the state by a tremendous majority four years ago. He tried to belittle Roosevelt's 725,000 majority in 1930 by pointing out that some 1,400,000 voters stayed away from the polls, implying that the reason for their failure to vote was their opposition to Roosevelt. He did not refer to the more plausible reminder that the same motive he attributed to the absent voters would have impelled them to go to the polls. And finally he presumed to say that Roosevelt was unpopular in the very section of the country where the preferential primaries showed him to be more popular than all those who sought to best him in the fight for delegates—the west and middle west.

After recounting these points the Roosevelt people here dismiss the Jersey leader's tirade with the statement that it is unworthy of the manager of a presidential aspirant's campaign. In its last analysis they believe it will do the Roosevelt cause more good than harm, a view taken of it also by James Farley, Roosevelt pre-convention manager, who is quoted as saying the nomination was in the bag if Hague could be persuaded to issue a statement like that every day before the balloting started.

GERARD DEFENDS ROOSEVELT AGAINST HAGUE'S ATTACK

CHICAGO, June 24.—(AP)—An old democratic stalwart, James W. Gerard, war-time ambassador to Germany, today took up the cudgel for Governor Roosevelt and answered the charge of Mayor Hague, of New Jersey, that the New Yorker could not carry the east.

In a formal statement, he said "any one of the democrats who have projected their hats into the ring can carry New York on a platform sincerely and undoubtedly wet."

He pointed out that Roosevelt was re-elected governor by a plurality of "about three-quarters of a million," and said he carried upstate New York for the first time in political history by 164,000.

CUBAN IS EXECUTED UNDER LAW OF FLIGHT

HAVANA, June 24.—(AP)—Daniel Buttari, a policeman of more than 20 years' service, was taken to Atares castle today and shot to death under the so-called law of flight.

More than 200 bombs as well as a stock of rifles, revolvers, fuse caps, dynamite, T.N.T., machine guns, machetes and uniforms were found in his house and in another residence where a raid was made.

The law of flight provides that guards may shoot any prisoner seeking to escape.

Documents discovered by the authorities were said to have implicated numerous persons with the ammunition stores.

Fire Calls.

The following alarms were reported by the fire department Friday:

10:15 A. M.—Luckie and Forsyth streets, car. No damage.

10:53 A. M.—28 Wall street, Brown building. Origin believed incendiary. Slight damage.

4:30 P. M.—Myrtle and Fifth street, N. E., shorted wires on electric light pole. No damage.

8:14 P. M.—265 Foundry street, N. W., manufacturing plant. Electric motor burned out. Slight damage.

9:20 P. M.—Piedmont and Edgewood avenues. Police called fire department to get a ladder for use in trailing burglar. No fire. No damage. No burglar.

Shouse May Be Forced To Vote Against Self

CHICAGO, June 24.—(AP)—Jouett Shouse may have to vote against himself for the permanent chairmanship.

A principal in one of the liveliest scraps at this convention, Shouse is a delegate from Kansas.

His delegation caucuses tomorrow to determine whether it will back him or Senator Thomas J. Walsh, of Montana, for the chairmanship.

There is sentiment for Walsh led by Governor Harry H. Woodring, in the Kansas group.

Should the majority line up for the Montanan and then invoke the unit rule, Shouse will have to cast one vote for Senator Walsh.

TAMMANY IS NEUTRAL ON CHOICE OF NOMINEE

CHICAGO, June 24.—(AP)—Steadfast against changing the two-thirds rule, Tammany Hall tonight still maintained neutrality in the biggest issue before the convention—choice of the 1932 nominee.

The almost instant response from the Tammany Tiger to the demand by followers of Franklin D. Roosevelt for a rule that would permit a majority of the convention to name the presidential candidate was an explosive roar of protest.

With it, however, went emphatic insistence that this did not presage in any way the position Tammany will take when the roll call of states on the nomination begins.

News that the Roosevelt men intended to make the two-thirds rule history, was followed by a series of conferences by John F. Curry, chieftain of the powerful New York city organization with his lieutenants.

Soon word came from behind closed doors of his hotel quarters that he would "fight to the last ditch" against the proposal.

This declaration, the first by Curry since his arrival, was generally interpreted as meaning he would throw all his strength into the controversy in order to maintain a dominant position in the convention.

For months Tammany has remained silent while the contest for delegates waged. Every attempt to get Curry to indicate his choice for nominee has been met by the silence for which he is noted.

It has long been an open secret in Tammany circles, however, that Curry would attempt to get control of the convention by not committing his delegation of 45 or 50 until the last moment.

STATE DEMOCRATS SEE BIG VICTORY

is a good omen. He entertained the Georgia delegation at a dinner at the old Capital City Club back in 1888 and the democrats won. It is, too, a tribute to a real warhorse that this delegation has assembled.

"What every member of this delegation hopes for," the governor, chairman of the delegation, added, "is an overwhelming victory. When we get to Chicago, though, the reports indicate, we are going to find the disciples of privilege foregathered there to block the nomination of Georgia's favorite. I hope every member of this delegation will look upon this trip as an opportunity for service to the nation."

Colonel Spalding, one of the delegates-at-large from Georgia, told the delegates that the dinner meeting had a dual purpose—to celebrate his return to a national party pow-wow after an absence of 32 years and to provide for a "get-together" of the delegates before embarking for the Windy City.

Colonel Spalding, speaking briefly, told of his trip to St. Louis in 1888, when Cleveland was nominated and of his next—and last—convention experience, in 1900, at Kansas City, when William Jennings Bryan was nominated for the third time. John W. Bennett, of Waycross, was the only other delegate to the Chicago convention who went to Kansas City in 1900. Clark Howell, a delegate-at-large now, was national committeeman then.

Lawrence Camp, democratic state chairman, said the delegates would probably caucus aboard the train for the purpose of naming the state's member on the rules, resolution and permanent organization committees. Clark Howell, vice chairman of the Georgia delegation, has been asked by James A. Farley, Roosevelt manager, to serve with the rules committee.

Their Government Overthrown

KING PRAJADHIPOK AND QUEEN RAMBAI.

REVOLT TOPPLES SIAMESE THRONE

These advices said the king and queen had been captured.

A diplomatic official in Paris recalled that King Prajadhipok had no children, and suggested the rebellion possibly was intended to place on the throne a dynasty more likely to continue.

The announcement of the military chiefs would not seem to bear out this deduction, however, and appeared to be more susceptible to the interpretation that perhaps Prajadhipok would be allowed to stay if he granted a constitution.

The king is responsible to no one under present law, and himself initiated the idea of selecting advisers in the cabinet and privy council, both of which bodies meet weekly.

While in the United States for an operation on his eye last year, the king told interviewers he intended to set up a constitutional monarchy when his country was ready for it.

Siam has a population of about 10,000,000 persons. The present monarch has introduced many western modernizations during his short rule.

He succeeded to the throne on the death of his brother, Rama VI, in 1925, and became the seventh monarch in the present dynasty.

Milling Women Take Full Share At Chicago Pre-Convention Scene

BY BESS FURMAN.

CHICAGO, June 24.—(AP)—A milling mob of women today had full share of the democratic pre-convention scene, serving as a testing crucible in a destiny-shaping question—what will prove best bid for the woman vote in November?

Everywhere that was evident, as democracy fenced and feinted for the delegate-votes which eventually must produce a candidate and a platform capable perhaps of pulling that woman-majority Herbert Hoover piled up in 1928, and which his cohorts still claim for him.

No less an authority than the mathematically minded Mrs. Henry Moskowitz, who yesterday tallied what she considered the delegate strength of her candidate, Al Smith, pronounced the woman equation a fundamental factor on the chances of the aspirants.

Testimonial to the year-around work of Mrs. Nellie Taylor Ross, director of women's activities, for woman representation, 35 faithful committeewomen, each outstanding in her state, were here for today's meeting of the national committee.

Dean among them was Miss Elisabeth Marbury, colorful New Yorker, gazing with satisfaction upon the place won in national contests—scene today of Louisiana, Porto Rico and Minnesota contests.

In the Louisiana group was a feminine factor, an ex-governor's wife, Mrs. Ruffin G. Pleasant, who, having recently come to personal and publicized tilt with Huey Long, has been campaigning unceasingly among individual committeewomen against the seating of the Long delegation.

The Long delegation is Roosevelt-pledged, the anti-Long is not, and should success crown the campaign which Mrs. Pleasant shares with a large Louisiana group, including three ex-governors and their wives, the Louisiana vote might go elsewhere—and every state counts in a contest as close as this.

Other women also play their varied roles in the political piece. Powerful among those who plead for a cause was Jane Addams, who asked as a peace-plank adjunct, a commission to revise war debts.

Men rose as the aged, plain gowned, plain-spoken Nobel prize winner took her place behind a chair, and, using its back as pulpit-desk rather than support, said the world was moving rapidly away from wars and toward "overwhelming good-will."

Women concerned with the fate of candidates were in every headquarters, meeting, greeting, making that best bid for the women vote.

"Roosevelt, because of his progressiveness," said Miss Stella Akin, of Savannah, in the huge, hustling room of the man who claims majority.

"And that all the ladies in his family go out and work for it—hard," was the later laughing addition of his daughter, Anna Roosevelt Dall, and daughter-in-law, Mrs. James Roosevelt.

Al Smith's best bid for those feminine ballots was given by Mrs. Moskowitz as: "The native intelligence of women who appreciate a liberal, progressive, and frank mind such as he has always exhibited."

For the handsome Ritchie, of Maryland, women admirers waited long and patiently today before the Congress hotel door, and joined in his arrival fanfare.

Lavinia Engle, Maryland delegate, voiced his best bid thus: "It may seem unimportant, but it means an awful lot—he never has attempted to talk down to us because we are women. He treats our welfare pleas as governmental problems and not as women's fads."

Pretty and youthful Mrs. Harry R. Key, daughter of Amon Carter, of Fort Worth, who is playing hostess in the Garner headquarters, said: "I'm new to all this, but the thing that impresses me most is that he (Garner) made the house work with Hoover for the good of the people—and as a type he's honest, rugged and has always fulfilled his ambitions. I think that's what women admire."

The Byrd note was a world peace declaration: the Reed tone, voiced by Mrs. Lee Meriwether, "not to go over and fight other nation's battles"; and "Alfalfa Bill" Murray, himself, said: "My best bid? My wife!"

ROOSEVELT AIDES SEIZE LEADERSHIP IN PLATFORM BODY

Senators Glass, of Virginia, and Walsh, of Massachusetts, Roosevelt opponents.

Hitchcock said the group would endeavor to get together tomorrow morning to lay out a program.

Plea for Eastern States.

John T. Dooling, of New York, temporarily serving on the resolutions committee in place of Mayor Walker, tried unsuccessfully to gain reconsideration of the resolution setting up the subcommittee, and said he might renew his request tomorrow. Dooling thought New York and New Jersey should be represented.

Threat of a third party, voiced by Robert M. Hutchins, youthful president of Chicago University, and an attack upon the farm board and the republican agricultural policy by the Chicago board of trade, enlivened the long day of hearings by the provisional platform group.

Hutchins demanded that the party meet the economic issues "clearly and unequivocally." He denounced the republican platform and warned that a youth movement in the United States was prepared to look to a third party if the democrats "pass up their opportunity."

The educator named no specific proposals, but his associates had advocated reduction of the tariff, repeal of the 18th amendment, and modification of veterans' payments.

Farm Board Denounced.

Peter B. Carey, president of the Chicago Board of Trade, led the agriculture discussion by an attack on the farm board act. He said the only real farm relief would come under a democratic tariff which would "do away with the present republican tariff under which the farmers buy in a protected market and sell in a free market."

Carey charged the farm board had "wasted" half a billion dollars in two years and during this period wheat had dropped from $1.30 to 47 cents a bushel and cotton from 18 to 6 cents a pound.

"I don't believe," he said, "that any of these political nostrums will help the farmer; they only injure him and waste the taxpayers' money."

Prospects of a repeal submission plank became more certain with an announcement by Senator Harrison, of Mississippi, in favor of it. He proposed a "clear, concise" statement in favor of submitting the question to the states. However, he emphatically opposed moves to commit the party in favor of repeal.

Prohibition will headline tomorrow's hearings. Radio stations have asked permission to send the wet-dry fight over the air. The organized wets and drys—the same organizations that appeared before the republicans—are on hand for the contest.

Other Major Issues.

Tariff, labor and immigration also are on tomorrow's program. Unemployment figured in today's discussions with Samuel M. Hastings, president of the Illinois Manufacturers' Association, declaring no material improvement in employment could be expected until definite and big reduction in taxes were made.

Deploring industrial conditions in the middlewest, Hastings urged a plank committing the party to a policy of "drastic reduction in governmental expenditures in conformity with the impaired income of the American taxpayers."

Rear Admiral Robert E. Coontz, retired, representing the Veterans of Foreign Wars, urged a plank taking a definite "yes or no stand" on the bonus.

"Give the people a chance to say yes or no on this question and my guess is they will go along with you," he said.

Ralph Budd, president of the Chicago, Burlington & Quincy railroad, and representing the Western Association of Railway Executives, pleaded for removal of "unnecessary and expensive regulations of the railroads" and federal regulation of interstate highway transportation.

"We are not seeking favors, but want equality in regulation," he said. "We are thoroughly regulated now. We have competitors on water and land that are not regulated as to rates and services. They should be subjected as far as possible to the same regulations as the railroads."

The money question cropped up late in the day, with Charles A. Ewing, of the National Live Stock Marketing Association, favoring abandonment of the gold standard and inviting foreign nations to an international currency conference. He also urged that the United States take over the farm debt at an interest rate of not more than 1 per cent.

Milton Miller, Portland, Ore., declared "money was the livest question today" and that he believed in the "free coinage of gold and silver and extension of full legal tender privileges to both metals."

"Silver was secretly demonetized by a lot of gamblers across the water," he said, adding that since Great Britain went off the gold standard she had been underselling us in silver countries by 25 to 30 per cent.

George D. Beck, of Wyoming, favoring United States bonds being made legal tender in the payment of public and private debts.

the floor of the convention hall for decision by the delegates.

The hand of the Roosevelt organization was clearly apparent as Arthur Mullin, of Nebraska, and J. Bruce Kremer, of Montana, Roosevelt leaders, took the floor in behalf of the Hoidale and Long delegations.

The Roosevelt Minnesotans won recognition by 71 to 14 and Long's Louisiana delegates by 53 to 32. The Georgia representatives cast two votes for Long.

The Minnesota case opened in a wrangle and closed in the same temper. John E. Regan, of Mankato, representing the opposing Smith delegation, charged that the democratic manager in the last campaign had refused to send the campaign funds to him because he "wouldn't trust him."

"You are a liar," said Joseph Wolf, national committeeman for Minnesota, from his seat on the front row.

"They sold out to the republicans, too," shouted Regan.

"You are another liar and a dirty crook," replied Wolf with a movement as if to rise. Someone held him in his seat and Jed C. Adams, national committeeman from Texas, appealed to the chair to restore order.

The Roosevelt delegates charged that the Smith delegates held a rump convention because they lost out in the state convention and the Smith delegates charged the others had "corrupted democracy in Minnesota."

In the Louisiana dispute, Jared Sanders, former governor and chairman of the anti-Long faction, said the contest was between "elected" and "selected" delegates to the convention and was a struggle against Huey Long "boss-ism."

Sanders said he represents the "decent" and clean democrats of Louisiana against a controlled and unscrupulous element.

Fernand Mouton, representing what Sanders called a burlesque delegation brought here by Huey Long, gave a welcome light touch to the situation when he told the committee that he was "anti-Kingfish" (Long) and he was here to give 100 per cent cooperation in getting the Kingfish's scalp.

"We have here three fish delegations," said Mouton, a French-speaking Louisiana Acadian.

"The Kingfish (Long), the ex-Fish (Sanders) and the Little Fish, that's mine. We held the only convention down there. The Kingfish held a caucus and the others a mass meeting."

He said both sides were stretching their claims and read a ditty about a catfish and a sturgeon, ending:

"Catfish say let's swim up a little higher.

"Cause we don't want to associate wid no sech liar."

Huey Long said his delegation represented the people of Louisiana, proved at the ballot box, and that the other group were not the regular democrats of Louisiana.

DELEGATE TO SEEK OUSTER OF SMITH

Tennesseean Will Sponsor Resolution Demanding Pledge of Harmony.

NASHVILLE, Tenn., June 24.—(AP)—J. M. Gardenhire, a delegate to the democratic national convention, announced today he would sponsor a resolution to deny former Governor Alfred E. Smith the privileges of the convention floor and to declare him ineligible as a presidential candidate "unless and until he assures the delegates that he will abide the action of the convention and support its nominee."

Gardenhire, counsellor-general of Tennessee and a Smith supporter four years ago, in a formal statement attacked the former governor for his "remarkable interview" in Chicago a few days ago, "in which he declined to say whether or not he would support the nominee for president to be made at the democratic convention in Chicago next week."

"The democrats of the nation," he said, "must have been amazed and shocked" at the interview.

"It is almost unbelievable that former Governor Smith would assume such an attitude, especially in view of the fact that he has been showered with favors and honors at the hands of the democratic party. His utterances in said interview were arrogant and dictatorial, evincing an utter disregard of the party's welfare.

"Let us hope that Governor Smith really did not intend to convey the impression that he would refuse to support the nominee. Probably he intended to threaten and coerce the convention only. A stinging rebuke should be administered to this arrogant and defiant man by the democrats at Chicago. On what meat hath this our Caesar fed that he has grown so great?

"As a member of the Tennessee delegation and as a democrat who supported Governor Smith in 1928 because, he was the party nominee, shall advocate the adoption of a resolution in the convention denying Governor Smith the privileges of the floor and declaring him ineligible to be voted for as a candidate of the party unless and until he assures the delegates that he will abide the action of the convention and support its nominee.

"It is high time to deal vigorously with a man who seeks to thwart the will of the majority of the party, and who obviously intends to wreck it unless he can coerce the party into accepting his will with reference to candidate and platform."

California Dry Leader Joins Repeal Chorus

OMAHA, Neb., June 24.—(AP)—Returning from the republican national convention, William H. Crocker, California financier and delegate-at-large, announced here today that the recent anti-prohibition statement of John D. Rockefeller Jr. has converted him to similar views.

"For many years I had favored prohibition," he said. "Even my good friend, Nicholas Murray Butler could not convince me, and so ceased to argue about it. But the Rockefeller statement, penetrating based on a great deal of study, has convinced me that prohibition is unwise for this country."

WORLD COURT INDORSED BY UNIVERSITY WOMEN

BURLINGTON, Vt., June 24.—(AP)—The North Atlantic section of the American Association of University Women today went on record as favoring the World Court and as being opposed to reductions in education appropriations.

The convention closed tonight with a dinner. Speakers included President Meta Glass, of Sweet Briar College, Va.

N. Y. FIRM BUYS FULTON BONDS

$500,000 of $700,000 Issue Sold by Board at 97½ and Accrued Interest.

Sale of $500,000 of the $700,000 Fulton county school bond issue to the Chase-Harris-Forbes Corporation, of New York, at 97 1-2 and accrued interest was announced Friday by the Fulton board of education. Negotiations for the sale were conducted through Eugene R. Black Jr., district sales manager for the corporation. The offer of a local group of companies of 95 was declined by the board.

The $700,000 bond issue was approved by Fulton voters at an election held March 9. Proceeds of the issue will enable the county to complete its school building program. Jere A. Wells, superintendent of schools, said that contracts aggregating $300,000 have already been awarded, and others will be awarded as rapidly as plans and specifications are completed.

Mr. Wells expressed gratification that the board was fortunate enough to obtain a price of 97 1-2 for the school district bonds, in view of present economic conditions. It is understood that the bonds will be available for public sale throughout the state within the next few days. They bear interest at the rate of 4 1-2 per cent and are exempt from federal and state taxes.

Temperature Decline Forecast for Today

The weatherman promises Atlanta slightly cooler weather today as an anodyne to the sweltering heat of Friday which reached a 93-degree height in the afternoon. According to C. F. von Herrmann, the temperature will not pass the 89 degree mark today, starting at about 71 degrees. The range Friday was from 74 degrees to 93.

BLOOD TRANSFUSION FAILS TO SAVE GIRL

Despite a blood transfusion Thursday, Bertha Mae Morris, 17-year-old daughter of Mrs. Irene Morris, of 693 Kendall street, died Friday afternoon at Grady hospital where she had been for several days. The young girl was taken to the hospital Tuesday. Her condition was critical, and physicians declared that a blood transfusion was necessary.

William Coggeshall, 35, a neighbor of the Morris family, volunteered, and the transfusion was administered Thursday afternoon. Radio and newspaper appeals were made Wednesday and Thursday for donors of blood. Miss Morris showed slight improvement Thursday night, but suffered a relapse Friday. She is survived by her mother, two brothers, Howard and Ross Morris, of Atlanta, and a grandmother, Mrs. Amanda Goodman, of Atlanta. Funeral arrangements will be announced by J. Austin Dillon company.

"B.C." Relieves Headaches and Quites Nerves

Realizing that no one drug can relieve all headaches, as they come from so many causes, a North Carolina pharmacist has developed a combination of several ingredients, so blended and proportioned as to relieve almost any headache in a few minutes. You can get this formula wherever drugs are sold under the name "B. C." 10c and 25c packages, and when you have one of those violent, nerve-racking headaches, from inorganic causes, "B. C." will give you nothing relief in three minutes. "B. C." should also be used for the relief of muscular aches and pains, common colds and neuralgia, reducing fever, and for quieting a distressed nervous system without opiates, narcotics or such habit-forming drugs.—(adv.)

Is your Garage LIGHTED?

With hold-ups and other acts of violence a trifle (at least) more frequent than they were a few years back, one doesn't have to be a double first cousin of Mr. Webster's "Timid Soul" to feel uncomfortable when approaching a dark garage. An electric light over the garage door is a sensible precaution—and the cost is negligible, compared with the assurance it brings. You can even leave the light on, if you wish, when you go out in the evening—and the current consumed will cost no more than a penny or two.

Praises of Catholic Mothers Sung at Eucharistic Congress

DUBLIN, Irish Free State, June 24.—(AP)—Irish women, who have sent forth many sons to serve the Catholic church, and women from many parts of the world, assembled more than 100,000 strong tonight before the eucharistic congress altar in Phoenix park and heard themselves praised for their religious sacrifices.

Speaking from a tiny white pulpit, the Most Rev. Andrew Joseph McDonald, archbishop of St. Andrews and Edinburgh, told them that the "destiny of the human race lies largely in the hands of women."

"In the present crisis," he said, "none can render to God the homage he deserves as can the maidens and the mothers of the Catholic church.

"I call upon you women to respond whole-heartedly to that call wrung in anguish from the pope."

JURY WEIGHS FATE OF KENTUCKY MINER

HARLAN, Ky., June 24.—(UP)—A jury was locked in tonight with the fate of F. M. Bratcher, middle-aged coal miner, charged with murder, in its hands.

The jury received the case after dramatic, lengthy and impassioned argument by prosecution and defense. The prosecution, through R. L. Pope, requested "an eye for an eye from the murderers of Jim Daniels and only a death penalty will partly pay for the crime committed at Evarts against the state of Kentucky. This is not a trial between the rich and poor, but the trial of a cold-blooded murderer."

J. M. Robsion, former United States senator and chief of defense counsel, said, "The power of the commonwealth exceeds that of the defense in obtaining witnesses for this trial. Many a dollar is being spent to convict innocent men to satisfy the whims of the coal barons of this county. Somebody had to pay for the killing, but an innocent man is being persecuted."

In earlier defense argument, Daniel Boone Smith, young Harlan lawyer, brought tears to the eyes of his audience when he likened prosecution witnesses who, indicted in the killing of four men, including Daniels, at Evarts, on May 5, 1931, had turned state's evidence, to Judas who "sold himself for 30 pieces of silver."

Bratcher, who has been on trial two weeks, is the fourth of 27 to be tried for the killings. Prosecution witnesses testified to seeing Bratcher in the battle, while defense witnesses said he was in a barber shop at the time.

Bankers Are Cleared Of 'Rigging' Charges

NEW YORK, June 24.—(AP)—The banking houses of August Belmont & Co., and Speyer & Co., emerged victorious today from the trial of a suit marked by charges of "market rigging" and of sharp practices.

Supreme Court Justice Frankenthaler dismissed a $140,000 claim against them.

The claim was presented by Victor Soskice, son of a former Russian cabinet minister, and Michael Kay, who contended the money was due them for promoting the purchase of Charles M. Schwab's holdings in the Chicago Pneumatic Tool Company in 1927.

The promoters said they arranged for the purchase by the banking houses of Schwab's 95,000 shares at a price of $16,000,000. Their contention was disputed by Morgan Belmont, senior partner in Belmont & Co., who testified the only transaction he knew of was the purchase of 20,000 shares early in 1928.

In questioning Belmont, counsel for Soskice and Kay sought to show that plans for "rigging the market" were made in connection with negotiations to purchase Schwab's entire holdings at $175 a share when their current market value was about $137.

Stimson Denies Request for Wine

WASHINGTON, June 24.—(AP)—Secretary Stimson, in a letter to the senate today, vigorously denied a statement attributed to Senator McKellar, democrat, Tennessee, that "there was a recommendation for an appropriation for the state department of $400,000 for wine for foreign embassies."

The letter was read by a clerk at the request of Senator Jones, republican, Washington.

Secretary Stimson said the statement made by Senator McKellar on June 20 was "wholly without foundation and may completely mislead the public."

He wrote that never in the recollection of any official of the department has a recommendation been made to congress for an appropriation for "wine or other intoxicating liquor for any officer of the department abroad."

There have been no expenditures by the department for wine or alcoholic beverages, Stimson reiterated.

He was president emeritus of the Ansley Park Golf Club, a member of the Piedmont Driving Club, and a vestryman of the All Saints' church. His son, Parks Huntt, is widely known as an insurance man. H. M. Patterson & Son is in charge.

WASHINGTON POLICE ALERT FOR TROUBLE

WASHINGTON, June 24.—(AP)—All policemen in Washington were ordered tonight by Pelham D. Glassford, superintendent of police, to hold themselves in readiness for duty in case of disturbances among the bonus army, but the instructions later were cancelled.

Early in the evening men off duty were required to contact their precincts each half our in case of need. As no signs of trouble developed among the approximately 20,000 men encamped here demanding payment of the soldiers' bonus, the close watch of police was relieved.

Glassford had feared increased friction between factions might lead to internal trouble.

Officials said dissatisfaction among certain groups with the leadership of the army had brought growing discord in the last few days. Minority groups have talked of forcibly overthrowing the dominance of W. W. Waters, of Portland, Oregon, commander-in-chief of the veterans.

Waters today issued orders for all veterans to assemble on the capitol plaza for a demonstration, but less than 500 of the thousands in the city came.

MARTIAL AIRS USHER RITCHIE INTO CHICAGO

CHICAGO, June 24.—(AP)—To the martial music of three bands, Albert C. Ritchie paraded through cheering crowds today on his quest for the democratic presidential nomination.

His arrival brought to Chicago the first touch of the vigorous campaigning of past years. In the crush at the station, he lost a shoe. During the tuneful, tumultous journey to his hotel, he stood in the back of his automobile, smiling and waving to the crowd. His first press conference had to be postponed for an hour to clear his headquarters sufficiently to permit the usual exchange of questions and answers with interviewers.

He distributed a typed statement reiterating his stand for repeal of the 18th amendment.

He expressed confidence that in the event of the repeal of the 18th amendment, the states would guard against a return of the saloon. Pending repeal, he urged liberalization of the Volstead act to allow the manufacture of light wines and beer.

At his later press conference, Ritchie opposed change in the two-thirds rule.

In reply to a question, he said he had heard nothing about any combination against Governor Roosevelt.

Two Are Bound Over In Extortion Probe

WILMINGTON, N. C., June 24.—(AP)—Parker Quince Moore, former mayor of Wilmington, and J. J. Furlong Sr., former police chief and county recorder, were bound over to superior court today on charges of attempting to extort money from Mrs. Jessie Kenan Wise, wealthy philanthropist.

Furlong took the stand in his own defense in a preliminary hearing before Judge Henry A. Grady, and charged Moore with sole blame for the alleged plot. He said Moore asked him to send for a package of whisky at a filling station on New Bern road, and that he did it. Furlong declared he believed the package which contained "bait money" planted to trap the alleged extortionists, actually contained whisky.

Moore and Furlong are accused of having written threatening letters to Mrs. Wise, demanding first $25,000, and then $20,000 under pain of bodily injury of her life. Furlong was arrested after police took into custody several negroes who were said to have received a package containing money at a filling station about seven miles from here. Moore was arrested several days later and it was said the charge against him was the result of his implication by Furlong.

FEDERAL DRY AGENT SLAYS ALABAMAN

BIRMINGHAM, Ala., June 24.—(AP)—Tom McCombs, 38, was shot in the back and fatally wounded by federal prohibition agents near suburban Irondale today.

The agents, W. L. Hutto and S. R. Posey, said the shooting climaxed a series of raids in which 10 persons were taken into custody in the vicinity of Irondale.

Posey said John McCombs, the slain man's brother, was one of those arrested. He said McCombs had delivered them five gallons of liquor and when they arrested him he resisted and called for his brother Tom to come to his aid with a gun.

The agent said Tom McCombs appeared on the scene a moment later and after making a threatening remark levelled a rifle at them. Posey said the man fell to his knees and while taking aim his fellow officer fired once at him with a pistol, the bullet entering the right side of McCombs' back.

Hoover's Office Feels Weight of Economy Ax

WASHINGTON, June 24.—(AP)—President Hoover's office expenses today felt the weight of the governmental economy move.

Appropriations for the executive office were reduced by the senate $37,380 below the president's budget estimates which were accepted by the house.

The cuts, all recommended by the appropriations committee, were:

Personal services in the office of the president, from $96,180 to $90,000.

Traveling and official entertainment expense of the president, from $25,000 to $20,000.

Other traveling expenses and repair and maintenance of the executive mansion and grounds, $142,000 to $125,000.

Printing and binding, $2,700 to $2,000.

Contingent expenses, including stationery, books, telephones, automobile and garage expenses, $43,500 to $35,000.

Swimmer Badly Hurt By Sharks Off Florida

ST. AUGUSTINE, Fla., June 24.—(AP)—Rolf Luetkemeyer, of Long Island City, N. Y., was brought to a hospital here at noon today suffering from a serious shark bite.

Luetkemeyer was swimming some distance from the beach when Kurt Radtke saw three sharks with his glasses and yelled a warning. The swimmer was pulled under almost simultaneously and had to fight off one of the man-eaters. When the swimmer regained the surface he was pulled in by Radtke, who had gone to the injured man's rescue.

At the hospital it was reported it required more than an hour to sew up the wounds in Luetkemeyer's body. He was suffering greatly from loss of blood.

SENATE PASSES BILL ON THREATENING MAIL

WASHINGTON, June 24.—(AP)—The senate today amended and passed the Cochran house bill to punish senders of threatening letters through the mails and ordered conferees named to speed action so that it might be enacted into law soon.

The bill provides for sentences ranging up to 20 years and fines of up to $5,000 in addition.

Chattanooga Official Offers Plan As Rapid Cure for the Depression

CHATTANOOGA, Tenn., June 24.—(AP)—Gift by the government of $25 to every person in the United States under a system that would produce $3,000,000,000 in cash and a turnover in payment of private debts within one year of $156,000,000,000 was suggested today by J. P. Winn, deputy city treasurer, as a sure and rapid cure for the depression.

"Persuade the government to issue a new $1 bill and lend to each man, woman and child in our country 25 of these bills. This issue would be different in appearance, but its purchasing and paying power would be equivalent to our present $1, as it would be legal tender for all taxes, debts and purchases.

"The bill must be enlarged to allow the placing on its back 54 spaces for 2-cent stamps and the explanation that it can not be held more than one week without placing one 2-cent stamp thereon, and that the bill will be redeemed within one year if all stamps required are attached.

"Here are the figures:

"Approximate population of the United States, 120,000,000.

"Twenty-five $1 bills to each person, $3,000,000,000.

"Each $1 spent 52 times, $156,000,000,000.

"Cost of 2-cent stamps sold by government, $3,120,000,000.

"Cost of money loaned by government, $3,000,000,000.

"Profit made on issue by government, $120,000,000.

"The government lends its people $3,000,000,000 for one year at 4 per cent interest, which will more than pay for cost of issue of money and the necessary stamps to be bought from postoffices."

INDICTMENTS ACCUSE WALPOLE AND BACOT

Indictments returned Friday by the county grand jury included three bills, accusing two men of making off with money belonging to their employers. A. H. Walpole was accused in two indictments for larceny after trust. It is charged that Walpole took $1,400 entrusted to him as petty cash by the General Fire Extinguisher Company and $2,040 on a dummy payroll. Walpole obtained the $1,400 by representing to his employers that he could save the firm the cost of the new federal tax on bank checks by paying some bills with cash, it was said at the office of the solicitor-general.

Marion B. Bacot was indicted for embezzlement of $3,261.50 from the Grahn Construction Company, of 215 Red Rock building. Bacot, cashier and bookkeeper for the company, took the money by raising company checks over a period from July 3, 1930, to April 4, 1932, it is alleged.

William P. Dunn was indicted on a charge of assault with intent to murder H. B. Coker, of 556 West Peachtree, who was struck with a pair of lineman's pliers.

Great Variety of Georgia Products Sent Widespread Throughout World

PRODUCTS FROM FACTORY AND SOIL IN HUGE VARIETY

Chamber of Commerce Points Out State's Great Resources; Atlanta Boasts 1,500 Different Commodities.

BY VICTOR BARRON.

The Atlanta Chamber of Commerce, which for months has been firmly behind the movement to foster the use of Georgia Products, whether they be products of the soil or products from the many factories throughout the state; in the July number of the City Builder—official organ of the Chamber, of which Slater Marshall is editor—there will be a complete handibook for the buyer or for one using any of the many articles produced in the state.

In an editorial in the June number of the City Builder, dedicated to "Transportation," this civic organization speaks of the wide variety of products finished by local factories each year.

"In Atlanta alone," it points out, "over 1,500 different commodities ranging from nails and barbed wire to Pullman cars and locomotives, are sent widespread throughout the world."

The editorials in the City Builder are always to be commended for their efforts to stimulate the interest of Georgians in their state and of Atlantans in their city. The keeping alive of the civic spirit is one of the principal efforts of this journal, by showing the commercial, industrial and civic resources and developments.

"In Athens, a manufacturer fashions millions of baseball bats each year, to be used by the famous player of the national game.

"Columbus boasts a well-known peanut plant, and Savannah a huge sugar refinery. Dalton's thread and hosiery mills, Macon's overall factories, and Cairo's canning plants are equally famous throughout the south and the nation.

"Georgia is an agricultural state, with cotton growing as the principal occupation of the majority of its inhabitants,' one reads in the geographies, yet she manufactures nearly twice as much in cotton material as she grows in raw cotton.

"Georgia is fortunate, her industrial development is rapid, in the next hundreds years, no doubt she will stand on equal terms with the greatest states in the union in the production of manufactured article."

S. R. OFFERS LOW FARES TO BEACHES AND MOUNTAINS

Fourth of July Rates Become Effective July 2 to Playgrounds of Georgia, Florida, Carolinas and Romantic Cuba.

Vacationland is calling!

Which shall it be—the beauty of the picturesque "Land of the Sky"—that magnificent southern Appalachian mountainout region—or the ozone-laden ocean breezes of the Georgia and Florida seashore centers, down to the charming city of Havana, Cuba, where beauty and romance reign.

Only a day or so away from the hot, sizzling pavements and congested thoroughfares, these comforts, enjoyments and recreational centers are brought to the doors of thousands of Atlantans and citizens of this section by the Southern Railway System at the most economical expenditure in history of transportation.

Nowhere in America has nature bestowed her blessings more abundantly than upon Georgia and her sister states and neighboring country.

The Southern Railway, according to E. E. Barry, assistant general passenger agent, anticipates an influx to the seashores and mountains during the Fourth of July holidays, beginning with their special round-trip bargain rates July 2 to Brunswick and Jacksonville, $3 and $5, respectively. In connection with these rates, the road will have reduced round-trip Pullman fares. The tickets will be good for five days, and an extension of five days for a small extra cost.

Reduced tickets will be sold to all points in Florida and Havana, Cuba, as well as to the mountainous centers of the Carolinas—the land of the rhododendrons—including Asheville, Hendersonville, Richmond and Norfolk. Reduced fares also will be available from Atlanta to all southeastern points.

Extra equipment, Pullmans and coaches, will be operated from the Terminal station for Brunswick and Jacksonville July 2 at 8:25 a. m., and 8:30 and 8:50 at night.

Tickets to the playgrounds of Miami and Havana will be good for 10 days.

The Southern also announces Fourth of July holiday fares—one-way fare, plus $1 round trip for July 1, 2, 3 and 4, with final limit 10 days in addition to date of sale, and tickets will be honored in sleeping cars upon payment of Pullman charges. Stop-overs will be permitted and baggage checked. For complete information consult Mr. Barry, 57 Luckie street, N. W.

Modern Milk and Ice Cream Co. Continues Steady Growth

Rapid and efficient delivery by expert white drivers and modern trucks, plus the highest grade milk for the babies and grown-ups and one of the most modernistic and sanitary concerns of its kind in the city, accounts for the continued forward strides of the Modern Milk and Ice Cream Company, Inc., located at the corner of Woodward and Capitol avenues.

Long since have noted health specialists and physicians stressed the importance of drinking the highest grade milk, not only for the general welfare of families, but especially for babies.

With full realization of this in mind and ability to apply this to the operation of its business, with a tremendous response on the part of consumers, accounts for the steady growth and expansion of the business of the Modern Milk & Ice Cream Co., Inc., with its modernly equipped establishment located at 9-11 Woodward avenue, at the corner of Capitol and Woodward avenues.

This concern, of which Ray T. Olds is president and general manager, has accomplished something so far this year that few concerns in the country have. And that is to have doubled its business over the same period last year, and at the same time double the number of employes.

2,500 GALLONS DAILY.

This concern is handling approximately 2,500 gallons of milk daily, serving some of the largest business firms in the city, as well as the home. It is selling more than 300 gallons of ice cream daily—from the tiny and popular "hunkies" and other brands to satisfy the whims of children, to gallonage from Atlanta's most popular and successful hotels, restaurants and other public places.

Starting in business about five years ago, the concern has made steady progress and today operates ten large trucks under the management of white drivers.

"We have doubled our ice cream business and steadily adding druggists, retailers and other customers," Mr. Olds said.

SANITATION THROUGHOUT.

The Modern Milk & Ice Cream Co., Inc., is one of the most sanitary and modernistic equipped in the south.

The floors are concrete and washed constantly. As an extra precaution against bacteria the bottles are washed by hand in huge basins in a steady stream of clean water with electric-driven brushes and then they pass through steam sterilization with similar precaution exercised until the bottles finally are capped and placed in the delivery trucks. All the nickle-plated piping involved in the transit of the milk is daily dismantled and sterilized.

PUBLIC INSPECTION INVITED.

Mr. Olds invites the general public to inspect his place, especially mothers and fathers who are so vitally interested in the health of their children.

Mr. Olds has just completed a huge new refrigeration, registering 10 degrees below zero for the final cooling and storage of the tremendous quantity of ice cream handled by the firm.

The company handles all kinds of milk—sweetmilk, buttermilk, chocolate and milk in all wanted-size bottles.

BARGAIN RATES OVER SEABOARD JULY 1 AND 2

Rolling Ocean Waves and Metropolises of East and North Calling Those Bent on Enjoying Fourth of July.

Traversing a region widely varied in character, beauty and richness, virtually forming a spider-like web from the utmost tip of the rolling ocean waves of Florida, through picturesque Georgia, Alabama, the Carolinas and into the Blue Ridge mountains of Virginia, the Seaboard Air Line has given citizens throughout their territory an opportunity to visit the major cities of the east and north at ridiculously low fares during the July Fourth holidays.

The bargain rates—round-trip—become effective from Athens July 1 and 2 for Washington, Philadelphia, New York city and Pittsburgh, while an excursion from Atlanta July 2 will depart for Richmond, Portsmouth, Norfolk and Raleigh.

Return trips, according to Fred Geissler, general passenger agent, The 22 Marietta Street building, must begin from point of destination not later than midnight, July 5.

In addition to the de luxe service and unexcelled dining cars on all the trains, the Pullman Company is cooperating with the Seaboard in connection with this low-priced excursion by offering lower berths for the round trip at greatly reduced prices.

Mr. Geissler says that reduced rates also are offered to many other destinations reached by the Seaboard leaving Atlanta July 1 and 2. These special excursion tickets will be honored on the Seaboard's Southern States Special.

EXPERT POINTS TO GREAT POWER OF LIFE INSURANCE

Dr. Berridge, Metropolitan Economist, Shows How Industry Survives World-Wide Depression Powerful Demand.

Dr. W. A. Berridge, economist, Metropolitan Life Insurance Company, a recent isuue of Dun's Review points out some recognized facts showing how the life insurance structure has weathered the world-wide depression and sketches some of the economic factors bearing upon the future of life insurance when recovery appears in general business conditions.

"One of the most impressive acid tests of the soundness of the life insurance structure, and its future potential market, is the reaction of life insurance to the impact of economic conditions during the extraordinary depressed year just passed," he says. Notwithstanding the fact that the increase was a small one, a fact most significant of the powerful underlying forces of demand is that there could be any increase at all in a year fraught with so many economic difficultis," Dr. Berridge stated. He further says:

"Despite the setback in consumer markets, new sales of life insurance during the year just closed are estimated by the Association of Life Insurance Presidents at $11,050,000,000 in ordinary, $4,800,000,000, in industrial, and $650,000,000 in group—making a total of $16,500,000,000 in 1931 as compared with a final figure of $19,019,790,000 for 1930, or a decline of only about 14 per cent. Ordinary, which constitutes the lion's share of the market, probably gained in force approximately $900,000,000, or from $79,800,000,000 to $80,700,000,000, neither group nor industrial gaining very much if any."

LIFE INSURANCE

PROOF VS. FAITH

Until the present business situation had settled all over the land, the American people had taken their life insurance largely on faith in what the Agents told them. Now, however, they have had conclusive proof that the pictured completeness of service was a reality. Their knowledge has come from intimate emergency experience. They have found that their life insurance investment was for the living as well as for the survivors of the deceased, and that the companies have been swiftly prompt in their service, their contract promises being redeemed one hundred cents on the dollar.

Having, for the time being at least, less money for general investment, the public is turning still more strongly to life insurance, for a combining of its protective and maintenance functions with a permanently reliable depository for savings and surplus funds. That is, an investment unequaled because of the breadth of its usefulness and its supreme safety.

2 LOUISIANA BANDITS HELD IN SECRET JAIL

State Will Seek To Try Duo on Murder Charge, Officials Say.

MURFREESBORO, Ark., June 24.—(AP)—Two confessed Louisiana bank bandits and kidnapers were spirited away from Murfreesboro early today to a jail in an unannounced Louisiana city by three sheriffs and a posse of 20 deputies and citizens.

The Louisiana officers said they were moving the bandits, John B. Thomas, 40, and Walter Bearden to forestall any attempt by the federal government to try the men under the new kidnaping bill signed Wednesday by President Hoover. They announced their intention of bringing them to trial for the murder of Deputy Sheriff Elmo Ferguson, who was killed in a battle between the bandits and pursuing officers in Richland parish, Louisiana, Tuesday. Four other officers were wounded in the battle.

Sheriff M. D. Cummings, of Pike county, Arkansas, who, with two deputies arrested Thomas and Bearden as they drove into a Murfreesboro filling station late yesterday in the car of their hostages, Mr. and Mrs. Clyde Taylor, of Franklin parish, Louisiana, recovered $175 from the pair, which they admitted was part of the bank loot.

Louisiana officers previously had found $400 in an automobile abandoned by the bandits in Louisiana Tuesday after the gun battle. Thomas and Bearden, officers said, insisted this comprised the loot taken in the bank holdup at Baskin, with the exception of $25 spent on their hurried flight into Arkansas.

Mr. and Mrs. Taylor, who had been forced to leave their home and drive the bandits northward in their flight after the bandits abandoned their car, left for home this morning.

HERBERT B. WALKER.

NEW YORK, June 24.—(AP)—Herbert Brooks Walker, president of the American Steamship Owners' Association, died last night at his Park avenue home. He was 62.

In the World War he had charge of all coastwise steamships operated by the railroad administration.

Debts Totalling $75,000 Cancelled By Generous Iowa Storekeepers

SLOAN, Iowa, June 24.—(AP)—Mr. and Mrs. James Hennum have hearts of gold.

Ask any of the hundreds of persons who have dealings with them and they'll tell you all about it—of how the Hennums voluntarily canceled all debts on the books of their general store—totaling about $75,000—and told them to forget their action.

But the beneficiaries aren't forgetting. They're telling the world about it. Many called to thank the Hennums. But if they expected much talk they were disappointed. Some came and offered to pay up, but in each instance the Hennums refused the money.

The money, the Hennums suggested, could be turned over to churches or charity if their former debtors felt that way about it.

Their creditors numbered several hundred and the debts ranged from a few cents to $1,000, some of them having been owed for 14 years. To each person they addressed a letter, which read:

"Kind Friends, Mr. and Mrs. ——:

"We take the liberty of cancelling your debt to us of $——. We hope this will meet your approval. After careful consideration we feel a higher will is guiding. May God bless and pros you is our prayer.

"With best regards,

"MR. AND MRS. JAMES HENNUM."

ROYALIST QUEEN GOES INTO OBLIVION AT ENGLISH COURT

LONDON, June 24.—(AP)—One of London's greatest free shows—the queue of motors when the king and queen hold court—went suddenly into oblivion today.

And there were signs of protest from the public and from the presentees alike. Nevertheless, the aging George V abandoned entirely a usage hallowed through the reigns of Victoria and Edward.

There was no wait at all on the Mall in front of Buckingham palace. Instead the limousines of presentees and their sponsors were admitted directly to the palace courtyard as they arrived.

The protests appeared to be based on the fact that many had made appointments to have their friends stop by their limousine windows during the long wait on the Mall.

Last night was the first on which the queue was shortened, and tonight it was abandoned.

As a result, the many thousands who gathered as always to exercise the hitherto unquestioned right to have a look-see at the popular social show, went away—for the most part, disappointed and indignant.

The two men were en route to Washington when the accident occurred. The car, driven by Miss Ruby Reeder, of Florence, overturned about two miles south of here.

Mr. Burch died in the Marine hospital here about three hours after the accident.

Mr. Fowler suffered internal injuries and shock. Miss Reeder escaped with minor injuries.

STOCK MARKET PROBE SUSPENDED TILL FALL

WASHINGTON, June 24.—(AP)—No more hearings in the senate stock market investigation are planned until next fall unless unforseen developments arise.

Chairman Norbeck, of the banking committee, told newspapermen today this had been agreed to by his group.

Investigators, however, will be kept at work during the summer amassing data.

SENATE BODY FAVORS COWLES' NOMINATION

Finance Corporation's Directors Expected To Name Dawes' Successor.

WASHINGTON, June 24.—(AP)—A favorable report on the nomination of Gardner Cowles Sr., a Des Moines publisher, for appointment as a director of the Reconstruction Corporation was voted today by the senate banking committee.

Chairman Norbeck, republican, South Dakota, said the committee voted unanimously on the nomination.

Senator Brookhart, republican, Iowa, was among those at the committee meeting.

Cowles was appointed yesterday by President Hoover to fill the vacancy on the board of directors left by the resignation of Charles G. Dawes.

It was said authoritatively that President Hoover has no intention of appointing a president to head the Reconstruction Finance Corporation.

Following a statement by Senator Robinson, the democratic leader, that Mr. Hoover has no authority to make such an appointment it was made clear in high administration quarters that the selection of a president to fill the post vacated by Charles G. Dawes will be left to the members of the corporation's board of directors.

Hitler, Communists Join Forces in Diet

BERLIN, June 24.—(AP)—Adolf Hitler's national socialists and the communists, who have been fighting one another in bloody political disorders throughout Germany during the last week, joined forces in the Prussian diet today to adopt a nazi bill lifting the ban on political demonstrations in Prussia.

Clashes growing out of politics have cost 10 lives during the week and resulted today in a public declaration by Herr Hitler demanding martial law throughout the country.

The document, coming from nazi headquarters at Munich, also declared for suppression of the communist party and purging of the police, especially in Prussia, of their socialist and centrist members.

At Stuttgart today, the communist, centrist and socialist members of the Wurttemberg diet, walked out when the nazis appeared in uniform.

When they returned they offered a bill empowering the presiding officers to eject a uniformed member, a maneuver which created such a hubbub that temporary suspension was taken.

Hutton's Erstwhile Love Admits Parties During Period of 'Sorrow'

LOS ANGELES, June 24.—(AP)—Attempting to break down the story of Myrtle St. Pierre that she was overcome with grief when David Hutton forsook her after a proposal of marriage, defense counsel drew admissions from her today that she had attended parties with other men during her period of "sorrow."

She seeks damages of $200,000 from Hutton, now the husband of Aimee Semple McPherson Hutton, evangelist, for alleged breach of promise.

Once, as Hutton's lawyer, Mark Jones, questioned her about alleged illicit relations with the choir singer, she began to cry and quickly collapsed, forcing a recess.

On another occasion, Superior Judge Lester Roth warned her against unsolicited answers to cross-examination questions, remarking "the court is not convinced all of these voluntary statements are unpremeditated."

Questioned about treatments she claimed she gave Hutton in her health salon in Pasadena, she told of giving him alcohol rubs.

Diverting the examination to her alleged illness over Hutton's waning love, Jones asked her:

"Now at this time you say you were refraining from keeping company with any man because of your grief due to Hutton's not marrying you—"

"I do not believe I said that," Miss St. Pierre replied.

"Well, did you attend any parties at your sister's home during that time?"

"Yes, I attended parties at Mrs. Cassel's, my sister."

"Did you go there with any men?"

"Yes, I took some men there."

"Well, what were their names?"

"I took Mr. Lloyd Curry there once."

"Did you go horseback riding with Mr. Curry?"

"Yes, in a riding party."

"You were with Curry very much during June weren't you?"

"Yes, at parties."

"And you were with a Mr. Addington and Mr. Eben, weren't you?"

"I refuse to answer that. We have discussed that before."

"Well, you were kind of reviving old times, weren't you?"

An objection was sustained.

She had testified previously that she once had a romance with Edgar Eben, theater organist. Further attempts to learn whether Curry had visited at night at her home brought replies of "I do not know that."

AIMEE FACES BEDSIDE TRIAL IN $10,000 SUIT

LOS ANGELES, June 24.—(AP)—A $10,000 damage action brought against Aimee Semple McPherson Hutton, evangelist, and J. Roy Stewart, film director, by John R. Gates, scenario writer, was ordered to trial today.

A motion by Mrs. Hutton's attorney to postpone the trial because of Mrs. Hutton's illness was denied by Superior Judge Arthur Crum.

He said court may be held at the bedside of the evangelist in a Bay district sanitarium.

Silverman Is Given 18 Months' Sentence

Louis O. Silverman, 49, of 883 Parkway drive, alleged "society bootlegger," was sentenced to 18 months in federal penitentiary Friday morning by Judge E. Marvin Underwood in United States district court, the court ruling that the sentence begin immediately. Silverman entered a plea of guilty Tuesday to an indictment charging a number of sales of liquor and possession of liquor.

Sentence was deferred from Wednesday morning when an additional delay was granted by Judge Underwood on the request of Silverman's attorneys who pleaded that the defendant's wife is in ill health. Twice before Silverman obtained a postponement on the grounds on his own ill health, offering a doctor's certificate to this effect on one occasion when the court demanded it.

It had not been decided late Friday whether Silverman will serve his sentence in Atlanta prison or the Chillicothe (Ohio) reformatory.

Americans Strive For Arms Cut Plan

GENEVA, June 24.—(UP)—An American drive to save the Hoover disarmament plan from piecemeal destruction today when Hugh S. Gibson and Hugh Wilson, of the American delegation, conferred with Tsuneo Matsudaira, of Japan.

They sought an expression of the general attitude of the Japanese government, which has been believed to be the most formidable foe of the plan because of its desire to revise the London naval treaty ratios of 5-5-3.

Matsudaira told the Americans that his government had not sent new instructions, but was studying the plan carefully, with special attention to the naval reductions proposed. The Japanese ambassador reiterated his government's desire for modification of the London and Washington naval ratios.

Wilson also began sounding out the smaller powers to learn the exact extent of their support, and the general commission probably will meet again next week to hear their formal declarations on the plan.

ATLANTA, GA., JUNE 25, 1932.

NECESSARY RELIEF.

Facts concerning unemployment distress in Atlanta made public at the citizens' meeting called to consider the emergency presented by the exhaustion of the funds of the emergency relief committee reveal a situation which must be met promptly and adequately.

If, as was the consensus of those who attended the meeting, the only way the crisis can be met is through the county commission, and if the board, as stated by Chairman Etheridge, can do so only through the levy of a special one-mill tax, then the tax should be levied.

In outlining the inability of the board to care for these appropriations out of its current revenues, Mr. Etheridge was frank and bold in taking the position that only by increased taxation could it take upon itself the financing of unemployment relief for the balance of the year.

In that he is to be praised, for this is a time for boldness and courage in those directing governmental affairs.

More than 3,500 families are not receiving their daily food from the various relief agencies. If lined up in military columns of fours, they would stretch from Five Points to Buckhead.

The city has never in its history been confronted with such a condition of want and deprivation. It is a situation that must be squarely met in the manner calculated to reduce to the minimum the suffering of those who, through no fault of their own, are for the time being unable to provide for themselves and those dependent upon them.

At the public hearing called for today by the board of county commissioners the full facts will be brought out. If it develops that only through the levy of an extra tax can the necessary relief work be assured, it should be done.

A one-mill increase in the tax rate means that each property owner's taxes will be raised $1 for each thousand dollars of taxable property owned. The average increase to each taxpayer would be very small.

Every effort should be made to avoid an increase in the tax rate, but if there is no other way in which to meet the present relief emergency, there can be no doubt that the one-mill increase will be approved.

If we were a certain mining engineer we'd dig a nice large hole in the ground, crawl in and pull the hole in after us.

NEW WEALTH FOR SOUTH.

The process perfected by Dr. Charles H. Herty, widely known research chemist, for making white paper from the slash pines of the south offers possibility for the creation of a new source of tremendous revenue for this section.

Practically all of the better class of paper now being used in this country is manufactured from wood cut from the forests of Canada and from the Scandanavian countries. Should the process perfected by Dr. Herty prove to be as economically sound, in competition with other sources, and it is declared that with large production it will be, cheaper transportation, both by rail and water, would cause the manufacturers to turn to the south for their raw material.

The slash pine grows profusely in the Gulf states, from the Atlantic to the Mississippi, and has a growth approximately five times faster than the Canadian or the Scandinavian trees.

Not only would the development of a paper pulp industry in the south bring new money and create new work, but the actual benefits resulting from the reforestation of these denuded acres would add many hundreds of millions to the value of the lands so redeemed and to surrounding territory.

The coming to life again of springs long dry because of the destruction of the forests in which they once flourished would be of incalculable benefits. It would mean that many streams which now go dry during times of drouth would remain to nurture growing crops along their courses.

The development of a large wood pulp industry in the south would be of manifold benefit, and it is to be hoped that Dr. Herty's discovery lays the basis for such an expansion.

Astronomers think intelligence exists on Mars. Sounds reasonable. There should be some intelligence somewhere.

"AMAZED AND SHOCKED."

When asked if he would support the nominee for president to be named at the democratic convention in Chicago next week, Alfred E. Smith declined to reply.

The attitude of Smith, so different from that of men like Garner, Byrd, Ritchie and other favorite sons, drew from J. M. Gardenhire, a delegate from Tennessee, who ardently supported the former governor four years ago, the following pointed assertion:

"The democrats of the nation must have been amazed and shocked by Smith's refusal to state whether or not he would support the democratic nominee."

The democrats of the nation are "amazed and shocked" at Smith's attitude. Four years ago he was demanding the loyalty of the democrats of the nation. And the vast majority of the country's democrats were loyal.

In the south, with rare exceptions, editors who had vigorously opposed the nomination of Smith and assailed him before the convention, gave him their hearty support.

Smith called for the loyal support of democrats and he received it. Today he is taking precisely the attitude which four years ago he bitterly condemned, refusing to give the pledge for which he pleaded in 1928.

Small wonder the democrats of the country are "amazed and shocked" by Smith's hesitation to offer the loyalty which he claimed for himself.

A farmer friend informs us that whatever else may result from the unemployed taking up farming, they at least will no longer be unemployed.

MISAPPLIED PROFITS.

Charge that holding companies have "violated the letter as well as the spirit of the law" is made in a report issued by the New York public service commission.

Commenting on the refusal of one of these companies to give information concerning the transfer of obligations totaling several million dollars to its operating utilities, the commission says:

It is clearly apparent to this commission that a part of the design of this so-called "system" is to prevent the acquisition of knowledge by the regulatory body and to withhold for the exclusive benefit of the ultimate owner or owners all advantages and profits that may result from system as contrasted with individual operation of these operating utilities.

We believe it to be fundamentally illogical to claim that by any form of organization there can be system unification solely for private profit or that such unification should be disregarded by the regulatory authority of the state, when the business upon which the whole structure rests is affected by a public interest.

This harks back to the "public-be-damned" trust days. The old octopuses of trade were no more grasping and ruthless in looting the people then are certain conscienceless holding companies of today.

Utterances such as that of the New York commission are becoming constantly more frequent, and it is not difficult to read in the handwriting on the wall the certainty of federal restriction of the activities of the now practically unregulated and uncontrolled holding companies.

THE WORLD'S WINDOW

BY PIERRE VAN PAASSEN.

Pope on World Conditions.

In a 6,000-word encyclical under the title Caritate Christi Compulsi, the love of Christ constraineth us, the pope attributes the present confusion to the lust of earthly goods, and declares that never before in the history of the world has there been a crisis of such gigantic proportions as the present one. He therefore declares open war on individual selfishness, and exaggerated nationalist tendencies, and exhorts the faithful to unite to oppose with all their might the evils that are crushing humanity and the still greater evils that are threatening.

In his reference to nationalist tendencies the pontiff points out that the right order of Christian tendencies does not disapprove of legitimate love of one's country the sentiment of justifiable nationalism. If, however, he says, egoism abusing love of one's country insinuates itself into the relations between peoples, there is no excess that will not seem to be justified. That which between individuals would be judged blameworthy by all is now considered lawful and praiseworthy if done in the name of exaggerated nationalism.

Feeling Their Bumps.

Some years ago when Lord Cecil offered to the house of lords a small bill that would have restrained motor speeds through English villages by making a shallow depression across the road surface at each end of the village highway, his modest proposal was dismissed with indignation or derision. The device would certainly have checked the speed of cars, or if the speed remained unchecked, would have brought them to a standstill by breaking springs or axles, but such a brutal and mechanical alternative as "slow down or break down" was not favorably regarded by either the legislators to whom it was presented or by the public at large.

Nevertheless, the device has been since adopted in at least one nobleman's park through which motorists have permission to pass, and where they have, in the opinion of its proprietor, tended to pass too swiftly. And the writer of a letter in the Morning Post now points out that in systematic Germany the same idea is deliberately applied in villages and small towns, where he discovered the highway "laid with an irregular or lumpy surface over which we found it difficult to drive at more than 15 miles an hour without severe discomfort," and at other points, guarded by warning signs, where a special speed-limit was considered necessary.

Letters From a Bald-Headed Dad to a Flapper Daughter

BY ROBERT QUILLEN

ROBERT QUILLEN

My dear Louise:

Yesterday I heard a lady some 20 years your senior advising you to be selfish. You must disregard others and grab what you can, according to her theory, for everybody else is doing the same thing and nothing is left for the timid and the backward.

I don't know what impression she made on you, but I hope you will be wise enough to judge her theory, as you do others, by the kind of people it develops.

Do you remember the Forrest girl and her evening wrap? She borrowed yours and wore it to a party because the clouds were heavy and her own wrap was too nice to wear in bad weather.

As an example of "enlightened self-interest" that scheme was flawless, but I seem to remember that you described it as some kind of gall.

Where, then, was the profit? Selfishness saved the young lady's wrap at your expense, but it cost her your good will and respect. What is the advantage of selfishness if it gets a nickel advantage by sacrificing a dollar?

That is the point always overlooked by the selfish.

Their eyes are fixed on the immediate gain and they never realize how much they sacrifice to achieve it.

Look at Tom's wife. When she and Tom were newly-weds, his idea of a good time was to take her down town and watch her pick out frocks and hats and jewelry. He enjoyed being generous.

But he soon discovered that he had a monopoly of the family's generosity. She took all and gave nothing. One winter she bought a $500 fur and called him a "perfect darling" when he gave up smoking to cut expenses.

She still gets everything she wants—except one. She greatly desires Tom's love, but that is gone. Men can't love unfairness, and selfishness is always unfair.

The lady gave you poor advice, my dear.

It would be good advice for pigs, for their one concern is the swill in the trough, and the disapproval of a neighbor costs them nothing more than a bump in the ribs.

But it doesn't pay outside a sty. Selfishness can grab the biggest piece of chicken, but it can't get another invitation to dinner.

Love, DAD.

HOLLYWOOD IN PERSON

BY MOLLIE MERRICK.

(Copyright, 1932, by the North American Newspaper Alliance, Inc.)

HOLLYWOOD, Cal., June 24.—"Merton of the Movies," made into a talkie under the name "Make Me a Star," becomes one of those happy things which will interest audiences from several angles. Aside from Stewart Erwin, whose ability and audience pull is unquestioned, the picture has the trick of bringing the audience inside the studio gates.

Glimpses of Maurice Chevalier, Marlene Dietrich, Gary Cooper and Tallulah Bankhead are to be found among several other notables of the lot. Since stories of the colony by the colony are a vogue just now, this angle will help put over "Make Me a Star" with gusto.

Well, Marion Davies will get the lead role in the "Barretts of Wimpole Street" and so the other girls on that lot may as well rest easy in that regard. Katherine Cornell wasn't interested in doing it for the movies, it seems.

Paul Bern will have Jack Gilbert for his best man and when that wedding to Jean Harlow takes place July 2, the then Mrs. Bern will already be in possession of a $60,000 home which goes into her name today or tomorrow. An example of faith seldom seen in Hollywood.

They are thinking of making a female "Tarzan" out of Lupe Velez . . . a jungle creature by name "Fury" . . . That would be the name of the picture also. It's just a notion and may not come through, although Lupe comes through a-jungling in some of our best night clubs from time to time.

Since Metro has the notion to give Johnny Weissmuller another "Tarzan" picture, he bids fair to become the Pearl White of the Apes and the industry bids fair to being on the verge of an ape-edemic. Well, it must be the warm weather. I'll stop that.

And still the airplane pictures continue. Lew Ayres, who was cast as the young Indian in "Laughing Boy" until the studio decided to find a real redskin to play the part, will have the leading role in "The Red Knight of Germany," the story of Baron Von Richtofen's thrilling air adventures during the World War . . . and the company making "Airmail" somewhere out in the desert near Bishop is practically stranded there due to the intense heat which not only prevents work but threatens to force the drivers of the automobile caravan to make a slow return to civilization, traveling mostly at night. So far they report "bursting tires due to the heat and asbestos covering necessary for gas lines to prevent premature vaporization." What's happened to the members of the cast, I don't know.

Health Talks

BY DR. WILLIAM BRADY

OUR IGNORANCE OF PHYSIOLOGY IS NOT THE TEACHER'S FAULT.

For the past two years, writes our high school teacher reader, I have had between 40 and 50 boys out every night for almost there months. . . .

Fi, fi, this is scandalous!

. . . and I believe every one of those boys is a better boy both psysically and mentally, as a result of his football training . . . Before a boy goes out for football he must pass a rigid physical examination by certified doctors as to his heart, lungs, teeth, feet and other physical qualities.

Then in another issue Dr. Brady takes a slam at algebra, saying it should be replaced by anatomy. Now I don't teach either and I'm not crying the benefits of algebra, but I do believe that if Dr. Brady visited some of the biology classes in first class high schools he would find taught there a great deal of human anatomy and physiology . . . (End of teacher's letter).

Yeah, and a lot of sheer hooey, too. My slams at the farce the elementary and high schools make of the teaching of health, hygiene, physiology and anatomy are intended for the high mucky-mucks, the state heads of the schools, the superintendents, the principals in some cases, and not for the helpless teachers. I know a teacher must teach only what his or her superiors direct and the teacher departs from the syllabus only at the peril of his or her job. It is the political accident that presides over the policies of the education department of the state or over the deliberations of the local board of education that is largely to blame for the costly joke. All degrees of graft are concerned in the matter—petty graft in the purchase of supply department, regular or Yankee graft in the preference of certain lines of textbooks and other impedimenta of the teaching business, and what a famous exponent of the art called legitimate graft on the part of distinguished citizens who hold honorary positions which enable them to bestow patronage, for which the recipients like to show gratitude in advance. Thanking you in advance is a typical Yankee custom.

folds sons and grandsons of Confederates fought in the Spanish-American and World Wars.

Following the veterans were members of the Confederate Southern Memorial Society, and Sons of Confederate Veterans, who were concluding their meetings which were held with those of the veterans.

A few of the aged veterans marched part of the way, but only a few were so brave. Their contingent was augmented, however, by young women and men with ambition to perpetuate the members of the southern soldiers to whom the parade was a tribute. The parade preceded entertainment features during the afternoon, and the grand ball in two sections tonight.

Tomorrow, accompanied by the Sons of Confederate Veterans, the "boys" will go to Washington for reception and review by Secretary of the Navy Charles Francis Adams.

TAX FOR JOBLESS WILL BE DECIDED BY BOARD TODAY

unnecessary and we can prove it to be unnecessary."

Paul S. Etheridge Sr., chairman of the county commission, Friday night in commenting on the league's statement, said: "I am unwilling to engage in a controversy with the Tax Payers' League or anyone else over a matter so grave as the condition that confronts us at this time. I am conscious of the responsibility that rests upon the board and I shall do my duty by Fulton county in this emergency to the utmost of my ability. I am sure the board will welcome any and all helpful suggestions and the co-operation of any group, but I am not willing to quibble while helpless people are suffering if it is possible to afford relief."

The league's statement is as follows:

"Our position is that we are unequivocally opposed to any tax increase in Fulton county when the levy is made in September.

"a. Because we have every reason to believe that it is unnecessary and we can prove it to be unnecessary.

"b. Because there is a concerted attempt by the county commissioners to saddle on us the responsibility for opposing funds for the charities when we consistently opposed cutting these funds from the budget.

"c. Because as soon as the chairman of the Fulton county commissioners keeps his promise to the mayor of the city of Atlanta and to the president of the Taxpayers' league that he would join us in appointing a committee to investigate all costs of city and county government, it will be demonstrated that the funds for charity can be made available without a tax increase.

"It is our belief that such an audit will prove to every citizen of Fulton county that more than enough money has already been wrung from the taxpayers to care for our charities at even a lower tax rate. Tax levies cannot be made until September anyway, which affords more than enough time for the survey.

"Pending this survey the county undoubtedly can borrow the money necessary for relief work, just as they borrowed funds for their pay rolls last month.

"We have said all along they can get the money for hospitals and charities—saying it in the newspapers and before the board itself. If they fail to do this immediately then the responsibility for the suffering that will ensue rests with the county board."

Decision to reopen the matter of increasing the tax by one mill was reached following a meeting Thursday night at the Ansley hotel, of business, church, social service and civic leaders who are aroused over the lack of funds for unemployment relief and the pitiful plight of many families.

"Having learned that the question of levying an additional one mill tax for charity has not been settled and will be considered at a meeting of the commission Saturday, the South Side Civic Federation desires to recall to the public that it has gone on record as opposing any increase in the tax rate for any purpose," W. T. Harrison, president of the federation, said Friday night.

said, "in a good atmosphere, and on a good tone."

"A complete presentation of the French situation was made by M. Germain Martin (the finance minister)," Herriot said when he left the conference and prepared to return to Paris over the week-end. "The Germans had presented their economic situation this morning.

Conference Monday.

"The economic experts will continue to meet and prepare a plan for discussion Monday. The discussion touched certain principles involved. All was conducted in good order."

Herriot dined with British Prime Minister J. Ramsay MacDonald before going to Paris.

Colonel Von Papen, aided by financial experts and Finance Minister Count Lutz Schwerin Von Krosigk, conducted the German side of the negotiations. The German chancellor also will spend the week-end in Berlin, consulting with cabinet members.

Count Von Krosigk clearly implied in his statement that Germany is not able to pay even in the future, but the French were not pessimistic and it was hoped some progress could be made toward a solution at the meeting Monday.

Herriot and Colonel Von Papen were on the most friendly terms, the French premier accompanying the chancellor to his hotel when the morning session was concluded.

Chatting with newspapermen, Herriot misquoted from Hiene's "Die Lorelei," saying in reference to the stormy weather: "It's cold but not dark," instead of "It's cold and dark."

Nations to Co-operate.

A German spokesman said Colonel Von Papen informed Herriot that Germany was willing to join France in economic reorganization of Europe, in co-operation with Britain and Italy, and with political guarantees in the form of a consultative pact which the Germans proposed tentatively several days ago.

Later the Belgian delegation presented to MacDonald a tentative project for economic and financial reconstruction of Europe, providing for:

Reorganization of German public utilities to assure the monetary stability of the reich.

Organization of a credit constitution, probably under the international bank, to aid central and eastern Europe.

Reform of tariff systems to revive trade with a view to gradually lowering entry schedules.

The Belgians also actively discussed a scheme for mobilization of the world's gold resources to restore credit.

This, together with the united Anglo-American front on disarmament, reportedly was one of the conditions on which the United States is prepared to reopen separate negotiations with Britain for a readjustment of war debt payments.

ACTION AGAIN BLOCKED ON CAROLINA CONTEST

WASHINGTON, June 24.—(AP)—Another unsuccessful effort was made in the senate today by Chairman Shortridge, of the elections committee, to call up the resolution for consideration of the contest brought by George M. Pritchard against the election of Senator Bailey, democrat, North Carolina.

Senator Robinson, democratic leader, said the record showed the contest was "trivial" and served notice he would seek to substitute a resolution dismissing it.

HEAVY RUNS LAUNCHED ON BANKS IN CHICAGO

CHICAGO, June 24.—(UP)—Heavy withdrawals in Chicago's biggest Loop banks today followed the closing of 36 smaller banks in Chicago during the last month.

Although Washington government officials predicted that the runs on the five downtown banks would pass their peak by tomorrow, one prominent Chicago banker said his organization, at least, was glad to see the withdrawals. He said his particular bank had so many millions on deposit that suitable investments were hard to find, so that the closing of accounts left just that much money less upon which to pay interest to depositors.

Five neighborhood banks closed today, including the National Bank of Woodlawn, the Ravenswood National Bank, the Kasper American State Bank, the Midland National Bank, and the Central Manufacturing District Bank, with total deposits of $10,300,000.

Rockefellers To Aid.

LA PAZ, Bolivia, June 24.—(AP)—The Bolivian health department has signed a contract with the Rockefeller Foundation for help in combating yellow fever in Bolivia between July 1 and December 31, 1933. The contract stipulates the government will pay the foundation about $18,000 for its work.

Sugar Shortage Brings New Rations for Soviet

MOSCOW, June 24.—(AP)—A serious sugar shortage has resulted in a reduction of the sugar ration from 3 3-4 pounds a month for each person to 1 3-4 pounds for the white collar class and 2 pounds for the workers in Moscow.

Simultaneously the price has been boosted from 10 to 15 cents a pound in the torgsin stores, which take only foreign money. In the ration stores the price remains unchanged at 21 1-2 cents a pound.

Soviet citizens of Moscow cannot buy candy despite the recent removal of confectionery from the ration category, indicating that the candy manufacturers are feeling the shortage.

DR. JESSE B. PHILLIPS PASSES AT HOME HERE

66-Year-Old Atlantan Was Well Known in Drug Manufacturing Field.

An illness of three weeks ended in the death Friday morning of Dr. Jesse Berriman Phillips, well-known Atlantan, at his home at 846 Euclid avenue, N. E. He was 66 years old. Dr. Phillips had been a resident of Atlanta since 1900 and was engaged in the manufacture of medicines and drugs before his retirement several years ago.

MRS. MARY E. GUNN, 80, CHURCH LEADER, DIES

Mrs. Gunn was born in Mississippi and came to Georgia as a child with her father, the Rev. Thomas J. Veazey, who was one of the pioneer Baptist ministers of the state. She and her parents resided in Powelton, Ga., on a tract of land granted her family for services rendered during the Revolutionary War, until she had reached young womanhood. She had resided with her son for many years.

Her father established many Baptist churches over the state, and her funeral will be held at the church he founded in Powellton. Arrangements for the services will be completed by Brandon, Bond & Condon. Mrs. Gunn was related to several Georgia governors.

Pershing Lauds Plan Offered by Hoover

PARIS, June 24.—The proposal which has been presented by President Hoover for the reduction of armaments affords a concrete and statesmanlike plan which should receive the immediate approval of all nations that sincerely wish to promote peace and end the world depression.

Such a solution would be fair and just to all concerned. Its adoption would go far toward the removal of jealousy and suspicion. It would open the way for a better understanding among nations, and it would undoubtedly lead to the peaceful settlement of many difficult international questions.

ALTAR SERVICE STOPS SCHEDULED SERMON

An old-fashioned revival took place at the Beulah Heights camp ground, Berne and Herman avenue, S. E., following a song service Friday night, and Rev. Fred Lohmann, St. Louis evangelist, was prevented from preaching his scheduled sermon. More than 50 persons crowded about the altar when Mr. Lohmann gave the invitation without a sermon and about 25 men walked forward and took his hand and returned to their seats. The altar service continued until after midnight.

"From Cow Puncher to Preacher" will be the sermon subject tonight, the evangelist having been a cowboy in southern Texas. Three services are to be held tomorrow, with Mr. Lohmann preaching at 11 a. m. and 7:30 p. m. His final sermon will be delivered Monday night at Rev. Paul T. Barth's church, Washington and Fulton streets. A baptizing service will precede the sermon.

ROSENWALD ESTATE INVENTORY IS FILED

CHICAGO, June 24.—(AP)—Inventory of the estate of Julius Rosenwald was filed in probate court today, disclosing chiefly $77,919 shares of the capital stock of Sears, Roebuck & Company, of which the late philanthropist was chairman for many years.

The value of the Rosenwald holdings was difficult to estimate, for 386,559 of the Sears shares were pledged as collateral on loans whose amounts were not given. The stock is quoted around $10 and $11.

Attorney H. M. Lauthmann estimated the estate's value in excess of $50,000,000. He said it was quite liquid.

SENATE PASSES BILL ON POSTAL INSURANCE

WASHINGTON, June 24.—(AP)—The senate today passed and sent to the White House a house bill increasing postal insurance and collect-on-delivery rates, which the postoffice department estimated would yield $2,500,000 annual revenue.

The measure provides for graduated increases in all but the minimum rates now charged, and adds a 30-cent rate for insurance up to $150 value and 35 cent up to $200. The present schedule stops at 25 cents for articles at not more than $100.

be turned over to Baldwin county authorities for prosecution on a murder charge as the result of the death of the trusty, John S. Williams, 70-year-old prisoner, who was struck and killed by the automobile in which Smith, Gardner and Powers made their escape. At the time of the occurence it was announced by authorities that Smith, Gardner and Powers would be charged with murder in the event of their recapture, and although Solicitor-General C. S. Baldwin, of the Ocmulgee circuit, could not be reached Friday it was believed the murder charge will be placed against Smith.

When arrested, after admitting his identity, Smith said:

"I knew I didn't have much more freedom coming to me, so I decided to go along quietly with the officers." He said there was "not much" for him now "on the outside, because of present conditions."

Two Companions Held.

His companions were identified as Ed Hodges, of Macon, who is wanted in Savannah in connection with a holdup Thursday; and Bessie Bateman, also of Macon, who is said by officers to have been visiting in Florida for several months. She said she met Smith and Hodges at the tourist camp Friday morning.

Both Smith and Hodges are suspected of having been implicated in a holdup at Savannah Thursday. Authorities said it was likely both would be taken there for questioning, but that Smith probably would be returned to Milledgeville in a day or so.

Chatting amiably with officers and newspaper reporters in Jacksonville, the slight, dark criminal said he had been doing "different kinds of work" in Indiana, Illinois and other northern states since his escape. He had in his possession a Ford automobile bearing an Indiana license plate numbered 533-727 when he and his companions were surprised as they were eating lunch about 4 o'clock Friday afternoon. Smith said he had "borrowed" the car about three months ago.

Smith said he and Hodges left Chicago last Friday and had traveled at night. The Bateman woman gave her age as 21.

"Gosh, it's hot!" Smith exclaimed as he sat in the office of the chief of the Florida patrol.

Smiling at a question, he readily admitted having held up a cigar store in Jacksonville three years ago during one of his sabsences without leave from the Georgia prison. He denied having taken part in any Savannah robbery, however.

Arresting officers said they found two automatic pistols on a bed at the tourist camp where they arrested the trio. All three will be held for Georgia authorities, the woman probably as a material witness, it was said.

The escape of Smith followed that of Harvey and Jack Martin by a few days and threw the entire state prison system into hysteria. Harvey and Martin had sawed and tunneled their way out of an apparently unpregnable part of the Milledgeville prison, and the getaway of three additional notorious prisoners evoked a storm of public sentiment against alleged lax conditions at the state prison. Recapture of Harvey and Martin in the midwest a few weeks later, after Martin had killed a policeman, allayed a great deal of public clamor when Harvey was returned and placed in the death cell, and Martin was given a life sentence in Michigan for killing the officer.

Began Serving in 1928.

Smith first began serving his long series of prison sentences in December, 1928. Less than two weeks later, armed with a revolver which had been smuggled to him, he tunneled through a wall and escaped. Recaptured after a long search he again was placed in the state prison and stayed there until July 25, 1929, when he escaped, sawing his way to freedom with hacksaws. He again was captured and remained until January 25, 1932, when he, Gardner and Powers got away.

Only Gardner and Powers remain at liberty, it was said by prison authorities Friday. Powers had only a few months to serve when he made his latest break for freedom.

ED HODGES NOT KNOWN IN MACON, POLICE SAY

MACON, Ga., June 24.—(AP)—The identity of Ed Hodges, arrested at Jacksonville with Aubrey Smith, was uncertain tonight. Police said they did not recognize the name. Warden W. L. Proctor, at the state farm, said he had asked Jacksonville authorities to hold him there until he arrived for Smith tomorrow, to determine if he was an escaped convict from a Georgia prison.

Police said that Bessie Bateman, also under arrest, they believed to be Bessie Bently, alias Beasley, who, they said, was recently acquitted here in city court on a prohibition charge. Police said that she rented an automobile here two weeks ago and disappeared. The abandoned car was found in Jacksonville. Bessie Bently, they said, was a brunette, 24 to 26 years old and weighs 150 to 160 pounds.

Enforced Abstinence Assailed by Bishop

MEMPHIS, Tenn., June 24.—(AP) Total abstinence, if enforced by law, is "anti-Christian," Bishop Thomas F. Gailor, head of the Episcopal diocese of Tennessee, said in a letter made public here today by Mrs. R. Brinkley Snowden, head of the Memphis group of the Women's Organization for National Prohibition Reform.

Bishop Gailor's letter, written at Sewanee, Tenn., two days ago, said he had consistently opposed the prohibition law from the beginning and "predicted the reign of lawlessness and crime with which we are now afflicted."

"Moreover," he continued, "in these days of financial depression it is madness for the government to be paying millions of the taxpayers' money to a lot of spies and informers who are enriching themselves at our expense.

"And finally, I have contended that total abstinence, enforced by law, is anti-Christian, as any historical scholar can prove."

Bishop Gailor congratulated Mrs. Snowden on a recent speech she made while advocating the repeal of the eighteenth amendment.

Tennessee Prisoner Beats Mate to Death

NASHVILLE, Tenn., June 24.—(AP)—How a convict in the state penitentiary here beat a fellow prisoner to death with a wooden checker board was revealed today by Richard H. Lyle, commissioner of institutions.

Lyle said that General Mayes, 20, attacked Henry Stallings, 22, with the checker board while the latter was lying on his bunk and continued to strike him until Stallings' skull was fractured. The assault occurred shortly after midnight Thursday morning

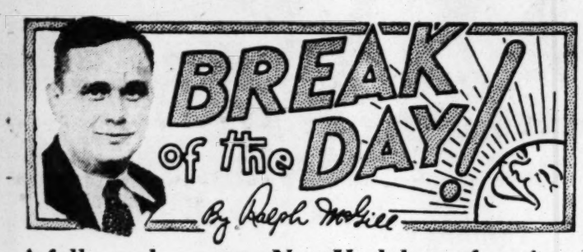
J. M. HIGH CO.
"49 Years of Underselling Atlanta"

BRYAN GRANT MEETS CLIFF SUTTER FOR TITLE



A fellow who gets to New York but a few times each year insists on telling you about a few things he saw:

Frank Buck was sitting in Reubens at 3:30 o'clock Wednesday morning when I met him. He had just come from his show, "Bring Them Back Alive," which is now in its second week at the Mayfair theater on Broadway. He had made a personal appearance at the midnight showing.

Frank Buck has made a profession of going into the jungles and the deserts of the least-known parts of the world and bringing back strange and familiar animals to sell. He hunts them with rope, traps and his wits. He brings back tigers, lions, great pythons, cobras and practically everything that creeps, crawls or runs in the jungles.

People in professions like that always interest me. They had to start in at catching things. And so, inquisitive to a fault, I asked Buck. Was his start an accident or was he trained for it?

"An accident," he said. "I just got a chance to go on an expedition to South America. And I saw the sailors catch birds and monkeys and things and bring them back and sell them. That gave me an idea and so I tried it. From there I went on bringing them back alive."

The marquee above the Mayfair theater has one of the greatest exhibitions Broadway has seen in years. Across the top is a procession of animals—a crocodile in the grip of a great python whose ugly head is reared high; a jungle deer with a tiger clinging to its back as the deer rises and falls; a crocodile holding a tiger; a native with his spear; a huge elephant which tosses its head and rolls and unrolls its trunk; these and many more are to be seen above the marquee. Crowds stand and gape at it. Inside are the movies—real animal pictures—no faking.

One of the most interesting men—Frank Buck—who brings them back alive. His brother came from Dallas, where the Buck home is, to see the Broadway premiere.

LET ME RECOMMEND.

Reubens offers, to the dawn trade, many delectable comestibles. One, especially, intrigued me.

It was a large bun, about the size of a breakfast plate. It was a rich brown on top and baked to a turn inside. Inside this was placed a well-done hamburger steak. And on top of the steak was placed French fried onions. A touch of melted butter on the bun.

And there, my friends and foes, is a dish. Served with hot coffee it will make you cry for more.

THAT HOT CAKE MACHINE.

A certain restaurant was packing them in before the big window wherein a machine was on exhibition. This machine has taken away, or will, the most picturesque of all window displays—the hot cake cooker who tossed the cakes so deftly and served them brown and succulent to the waiting waitress.

The new machine, a beautiful thing, takes the batter, pours it for three cakes, cooks the cakes brown on one side, turns them and then picks them up one by one and puts them on a plate. And that's not all. The plate then slips down, another slips into its place, more batter is poured and the machine rolls on.

You can, if you choose, push the button and see your own cakes poured, cooked, turned and served. In fact, a sign invites you to step up and push the button.

Out in front a crowd watched, packed deep about the window. And a man growled, "Just another machine to take a job away from someone." But the machine was getting a big play.

Broadway has almost a carnival air. There are street-hawkers in every block selling gew-gaws of all sorts. And each gets his crowd. The new hot-cake machine got the largest.

Now, I wonder who took the trouble to sit down and figure out, of all things, a hot-cake machine?

DID YOU VOTE FOR HOOVER?

The political gags are being worked in every show. The Palace, which has recently gone to four-a-day vaudeville, offers eight acts, the best one of which begins with a young lady walking on the stage and meeting a young man.

"Did you vote for Hoover?" she asks.

"Why, yes," says the young man.

And, "Pow," she lets him have it right across the face. And that gets a big hand and a big laugh.

Many of the acts had them laughing about hard times and the depression. The stage and the sports pages may bring us through the economic crisis without trouble.

The Sharkey-Schmeling decision row created more interest, more partisanship and more talk than any of the real issues of the day. Interest in sports and the sports pages remains high. There is no depression in sports interest. In fact, they are reading sports more than ever. Because they can't go to the events as they once did and don't miss reading about them.

Several songs at the Palace dealt with the present condition —"Landlord, Keep Away From My Door," "Just an Unemployed Gigolo" and others all got good laughs and applause.

"Give them bread and sports," was an old, old remedy for tough times. And as long as they can roll up sleeves and fight about a boxing decision and laugh when the joke is on them, there is still a lot of hope. (The old economist at work.)

THE GARDEN CROWD.

It is a curious crowd that hangs about the offices of Madison Square Garden. There are several old fighters and old fight handlers, with their ears showing their trade.

Hard times have knocked at the door of the smaller clubs. Many of the managers and fighters now at liberty will work for coffee and cake money where three years ago the fighter would not untie his shoes for less than a couple of thousand.

In the office of Jimmy Johnston, matchmaker for the Garden, the walls are crowded with pictures of fighters. I found the picture of Tiger Flowers, the great colored middleweight from Atlanta, who died a few years ago. The Tiger grins from the wall there, the old golden grin he used to show in the ring. They all respect the Tiger up there. He was a real fighter. A former champion.

BARE LEGS SAVE STOCKINGS.

There are a few hits in the theatrical district. Chorus girls with bare legs, to save wear and tear on stockings, may be seen out for a walk. Many of them lead dogs.

During the box office hour the beggars infest the streets where the show hits are. At one of them an old woman begs until the crowds are gone. And then looses a tirade against people who spend money for shows when there are people hungry. (Well, if they didn't there'd be even more hungry.)

Those who criticize the world's greatest city are, I think, incorrect. It's a great city—if you've got it. Which is true of almost any other city.

ONE LAST WORD.

Comes a letter from B. W. Watton, among others, of Shiloh, Fla., who adopts a very open-minded attitude toward the Sharkey-Schmeling decision.

Mr. Watton does not question the honesty of the officials or the honesty of those who thought Sharkey outpointed Schmeling, but protests that the radio made it appear that Schmeling had won easily when there was, to say the least, some doubt about it.

The New York commission is considering a rule which should be adopted—one which would bar from the radio at the big fights any announcer not a trained fight reporter.

Being at the ringside Tuesday night I did not hear the announcements. Those who did tell me that one announcer, a successful writer of fiction, made the fight sound as if it were a good fight. It actually was a poor fight. The second announcer made it sound as if Schmeling was far in advance on points when even his most rabid supporters will admit it was close.

This situation is detrimental to radio and to the fight game. The public should realize that the announcer is giving simply his personal version of the fight and that it may not agree with the viewpoint of the officials at all. A trained reporter, giving an accurate account of the blows, minus all fictional trimmings, would relieve the situation immensely.

MAKE RISKO CHAMPION.

Why isn't Johnny Risko champion anyhow? He belted Mickey Walker, the fat middleweight, around the ring last night to win by a wide margin. There was no radio hook-up so there will be no confusion about it.

It wasn't so long ago that Mickey Walker gave Jack Sharkey a great battle, earning a draw. Some claimed he had the edge.

At any rate the Rubbery Blubbery Baker Boy from Cleveland is very definitely back in the heavyweight picture. The fight business is picking up. It looks like a very merry elimination contest to see who shall meet the world's champion, Jack Sharkey, next summer.

PHILLIES BEAT GIANTS, 11 TO 6, AS KLEIN HITS

Chuck Is First To Pass Century Mark in Batting.

PHILADELPHIA, June 24.—(AP)—With Chuck Klein smashing out three singles and a triple to raise his total hits for the season to 103, the Phillies continued their heavy slugging to defeat the New York Giants, 11 to 6, today. Klien is the first to pass the century mark in hits this year.

Dick Bartell also connected with four hits in five times at the plate while Don Hurst brought his total hits for the season to 99 with a single and his tenth home run. Ott hit his 13th homer for the Giants.

DODGERS 3; BRAVES 0.

BOSTON, Mass., June 24.—Hollis Thurston kept his starting record perfect today, pitching the Brooklyn Dodgers a 3-to-0 victory over the Boston Braves.

Although hit safely ten times, at least once in every inning except the fourth, Thurston tightened in the pinches and aided by gilt-edge support kept the Braves away from the plate. Five double plays and sensational plays by Hack Wilson and Joe Stripp featured the Dodgers' defensive play.

Wilson also drove out a home run, his 14th of the season and one more than he hit last year. The two other runs were made in the second on somewhat flukey singles by O'Doul, Lopez and Taylor together with Slade's double and an error by Knothe.

Sock Selbold, starting his second game in as many days against the Dodgers, was touched for all of Brooklyn's runs. He was taken out for a pinch hitter in the eighth and Frankhouse hurled the ninth inning.

PIRATES 4; REDS 3.

PITTSBURGH, June 24.—Little Lloyd Waner poled a long home run into center in the seventh inning today, and the Pittsburgh Pirates took the first game of the series from the Cincinnati Reds, 4 to 3.

Eppa Rixey and Heine Meine fought a brilliant duel on the mound.

Lucas, batting for Rixey, opened the ninth with a double, but Meine tightened and Lucas was left stranded.

Fight Decision Upheld By State Commission

And Joe Jacobs, Manager of Schmeling, Is Indefinitely Suspended for Protesting.

NEW YORK, June 24.—(AP)—The New York state athletic commission, sitting in judgment on the Sharkey-Schmeling championship fight, today indefinitely suspended Joe Jacobs, manager of Schmeling, approved the work of Referee "Gunboat" Smith, and praised the German fighter both as a boxer and as a gentleman.

Jacobs, who charged that Schmeling had been robbed of the decision by unfair officials named by the commission, was suspended as manager and a second on the grounds that his conduct and actions were detrimental to the best interests of boxing. His suspension, however, does not affect Schmeling or other boxers in the Jacobs-Billy McCarney stable.

"We have nothing but praise for Schmeling," said Commissioner Muldoon. "Not only is he a 40 per cent better fighter than two years ago, but his manners and conduct, after losing the championship, were a credit to the ring."

Smith, appearing before the commission on his own initiative to ask if any complaints had been received on his work in the fight, was congratulated by Commissioners Muldoon and John J. Phelan. James A. Farley, chairman of the board, was not present, being in Chicago for the democratic national convention.

"We have no fault to find with the officials," said Muldoon. "They performed their duty to the best of their ability. Nobody knew of their appointment until a few minutes before the fighters appeared, except Phelan and myself."

According to Commissioner Phelan, Jacobs never appeared before the commission before the fight to lodge any complaint against the appointment of certain officials. After the fight, Jacobs said he knew several days in advance who would be the third man in the ring.

"The commercial end of the bout spoiled the fight for the fans," said Muldoon. "There was so much money involved that neither fighter was willing to open up and take a chance."

Schmeling sails for Germany tomorrow night.

AMATEUR BOUTS PLEASE CROWD

A crowd of 1,500 persons witnessed the 10 bouts on Jay Thomas' second amateur boxing card at Lakewood Park open-air arena last night and saw four of them end in knockouts.

The battling was fast and furious all the way, the fights being as good or better than those presented last week. The show reached a hectic climax in the last two bouts, featuring Joe Mendoza, colorful Spaniard, vs. Red Barrett and Chief Redfern, Indian, against Howard Stanford. Mendoza and Barrett fought to a draw, while Redfern outpointed Stanford.

Bad Bill Brazial, game little flyweight, won the pair of trunks awarded by Mike Benton, vice president of the Southeastern Fair Association, for putting up the best individual fight of the evening.

Jay Thomas was exceedingly well pleased with his second show, which saw the attendance more than doubled. He will present another card next Friday night, after which the best men in each division will be selected to meet a crack team from Birmingham here July 4.

Following are last night's results:

Bo Finn, 134, beat Henry Humphries, 132 (technical K. O. in second).

James Rainwater, 132, beat Fredie Keef, 133 (technical K. O. in first).

A. D. Ford, 132, Lakewood Heights, and Sid Johnson, 130, fought a draw.

Ernest Wynn, 142, beat Glenn Lawson, 140 (technical K. O. in first).

Ed Fitts, 165, won decision over Arthur Hughes, 160.

Hugh Youngblood, 148, won decision over Ed Watson, 150.

Gene Cox, 120, beat Babyface Loggins, 118 (technical K. O. in first).

Bill Brazial, 109, boxed draw with Jimmie Key, 112.

Red Barrett, 140, drew with Joe Mendoza, 141.

Chief Redfern, 140, won over Howard Stanford, 143.

All bouts were limited to three rounds. Ted Carroll, Stormy Mott, Jack Taylor and Earl Johnson acted as referees.

Divers Compete This Afternoon

The city high-board diving championship will be held this afternoon at Spiller's pool, starting at 3:30 o'clock. Warner Heston, who won the 1932 low-board championship held at the Y. M. C. A. a few weeks ago, stated yesterday that he would also try for the high-board title. Leading Atlanta diving stars have entered the annual event and the contest will be one of much rivalry.

Those who have entered are Alan Alexander, who won the junior low-board title for 1932; Ed Valentine and George Valentine, the diving brothers; Joe Langley, the stunt diver and gymnast; Vernon Brown, former prep star; Bill Ellis, Norman Perry and Jack Deacon.

This array of Atlanta diving stars will compete from the 10-foot board in four required dives and five optional dives before three judges and a referee.

A handsome medal will be awarded the winner and runner-up. Spiller's pool has extended an invitation to the public to witness the contest free of charge. The judges will be J. L. Cook, Clint Ezell and Doc Huff. L. H. Cunningham, of the Y. M. C. A., will be the referee.

CRACKERS BEAT BARONS, 11 TO 7

Barron Gets Revenge as His Boys Win Final Game Here.

By Ralph McGill.

David Irenus (Red) Barron got his revenge last night and at the same time started the Crackers off on what was to eventually be an 11-to-7 victory over those Birmingham Barons.

For a long time Clay Touchstone has been anathema to Red Barron. It started in the Eastern league. Red Barron could not do a thing with Touchstone. He couldn't touch him at all. It continued in the Dixie circuit.

Last night Red Barron, first up for the Crackers, beat out a single past second. As Clay Touchstone stood on the mound dusting the baseball with the little sack of resin, Red Barron stole second. Clay Touchstone tossed the ball wild.

HURLER UP IN AIR.

From then on Touchstone was being broadcast by Station BARRON. The red-head had Touchstone up in the air. The usually effective pitcher was wild; angry, upset and disgusted. He couldn't come down to earth. And with him went the entire Birmingham club.

In a couple of innings the Crackers pushed over six tallies, took the bit between their teeth and went away from there.

Bunny Hearn, the portwheeler, was wheeling that baseball in there very effectively. He put his feet up on the handle bars and started coasting in the ninth and was almost knocked out of there. A sparkling double play originated by Johnny Chapman, whose fielding, by the way, is getting better right along, helped matters out and the little left-hander came out safely enough with runs to spare.

KNOWS HIS CONTROLS.

A. White, an Atlanta boy, pitched good baseball for the Barons after relieving Touchstone. A. White used to be a motorman and he knows his controls. (Two Bells, please copy.)

The Cracker infield performed brilliantly, Goff and Chatham galloping over into north Georgia a couple of times to catch baseballs. Duck McKee, appearing in left field, looked good.

The loud-speakers were in use again in the stands. Now that Fat Elrod has put away his Rudy Vallee megaphone, he can't keep away from the mike. Fat Elrod was talking all evening; pausing to admire his dulcet tones.

Among the announcements were those that the Crackers would play Knoxville this afternoon at 2:30 o'clock. Another that the ladies will be admitted free the week of July 4 (the day we celebrate), on Tuesday and Thursday. Following that they will be admitted free each Monday and Thursday.

THEY DON'T LIKE IT.

The dime tax demanded by the government was taken in the form of tax tickets purchased by the ladies. They don't like it.

Mr. Chickadee Roos, the business manager, was glared at by the ladies. Somehow they think Mr. Roos could do something about it. Mr. Roos, whose dome is getting grayer and grayer, asks that you write your congressman. He is helpless. Your Uncle Samuel is getting those dimes. Not Mr. Roos.

Don't forget—Knoxville today at 2:30 o'clock. Lefty Carithers will pitch for the home nine.

PERKINS SHOOTS 69 AND TIES FOR OPEN LEAD

DUTRA FALTERS, TRAILS LEADERS BY ONE STROKE

Three "Long Counts" Halt Leaders of First Day With 146.

FRESH MEADOW COUNTRY CLUB, FLUSHING, N. Y., June 24. (AP)—Olin Dutra, the California heavyweight contender for golfing honors, knocked himself right out of the lead today in the second round in the United States open championship, leaving the battle wide open again, with two more regulation rounds to go tomorrow.

Four strokes in front after his sensational first-round 69, still going strong for the first nine today as the weather gods finally favored the leaders, Dutra took three "long counts" on the incoming nine and wound up with a card of 35-42—77.

The Californian's 36-hole total of 146 left him one stroke back of a new pair of pace-setters, Jose Jurado, from the Argentine, now a thoroughly established favorite, and Thomas Phillip Perkins, transplanted British star who lately turned professional.

PERKINS SHOOTS 69.

The slim- bespectacled Perkins, former holder of the British amateur title, shot the best round of the day, a sub-par 69, to post a total of 145 that withstood the late afternoon challenges of all except Jurado.

The swarthy little South American apparently perfectly at home under all conditions and any flag, consolidated his bid by adding a fine 71 to his previous 74 for another 145 aggregate.

During the day that saw the gale subside and scores came back rapidly to normal, after a weird start, the effect of Dutra's semi-collapse was to tighten up the race, leaving five stars within three strokes of each other and a dozen more within hailing distance.

Barring further sensational developments, it looked like a five-star final for the double round tomorrow, with Leo Diegel and Walter Hagen, two seasoned campaigners, fully prepared to contest every stroke down the stretch with Jurado, Perkins and Dutra.

Diegel was two strokes back with a 73-74—147, one of the few top-notchers who failed to show substantial improvement today. Hagen, despite a costly seven on the 587-yard 16th hole, was only three shots off the pace with a two-day card of 75-73—148.

HALF DOZEN TIED.

There were a half dozen more deadlocked at 151, including Willie Klein with 79-72 to show for his form reversal. By a coincidence, the 152 bracket included Burke and the man he beat in a record 72-hole playoff for the championship last year, George Von Elm, who came back with a 73 after his first-round 79.

The record reduction was accomplished by Tom Cooley, of Chicago, who cut exactly 19 strokes off his score by dropping from a first round "high" of 97 down to 78. The most courageous rally, however, was achieved by Tom Creavy, of Albany, N. Y., the 21-year-old national professional champion. After a disastrous 83 for his first round, Creavy came back with a superlative 71 for a total of 154.

The scoring on the whole was still high enough, however, to permit 160 to qualify for the final 36 holes. One more total of 159 would have closed the list, based on the low 60 and ties, but there wasn't another to be found and all 13 deadlocked at 160 got into the finals, making a total of 72 survivors. This was just half of the starting field.

TWO STARS FAIL.

Barely inside the fold were such stars as John Golden, Joe Turnesa, Jim Barnes and Horton Smith.

Two former champions, Johnny Farrell and Willie MacFarlane, of the metropolitan district, failed by a single stroke to qualify. Al Espinosa, 1929 runner-up, missed by three strokes and Tomeikichi Miamoto, the lone Japanese entry, by four shots.

All told, it was a day of strange contrasts, the most dramatic of which was furnished by Olin Dutra in "blowing" an advantage that looked as safe as a national bank as he rounded the turn late this afternoon. With only nine holes to go, after equalling par for the outward nine, the big Californian led Diegel by five shots, Jurado by six, Perkins by seven and Hagen by eight, yet almost all of this was wiped out by his losing struggle with the homeward hazards.

SOUNDEST GOLF.

Jurado played perhaps the soundest golf of the day, from tee to green, thereby strengthening the conviction that he will be more difficult to overtake than Perkins tomorrow in the fight the homebreds will have to make to keep the United States championship from going to alien hands for the first time since Ted Ray was the victor in 1920 at Toledo.

The little Argentine, runner-up for the British open a year ago, was rarely in trouble, only twice in traps and at all times manifesting the ability to play every shot in his bag ably.

Much improved since the day he was crushed by Bob Jones in the 1928 national amateur championship, Perkins gave a gifted performance on Fresh Meadow's difficult greens. To offset frequent visits to the traps and the rough, the Briton had no less than eight one-put greens, taking altogether 28 strokes with his putter.

No one else "broke" for the first 36 holes but among an even dozen within seven strokes of the leaders were a number of stars capable of shooting rapidly to the front, if they get the "breaks" tomorrow.

Although they still had an outside chance, the failure of the two ruling champions, Bill Burke and Gene Sarazen, to strike faster gaits furnished a big surprise to the galleries. Paired together for the second straight day, neither showed improvement. Burke, the defending champion, added a mediocre 77 to his 75 for a total of 152, while Sarazen, having no luck whatever on the greens, posted a 76 for a two-day total of 150.

Bracketed with the British open king at 150 were two of the real come-back heroes of the day, Craig Wood, New Jersey star, who added a fine 71 to his 79 of yesterday, and Harry Cooper, who rallied to show 77-73—150 for the double round.

THE SPORTLIGHT

By Grantland Rice

FRESH MEADOW, L. I., N. Y., June 24.—The Spanish influence in the United States open golf championship, which was displayed so strikingly on the first day, still persists in the final drive down the stretch. As the surviving field swings under way on the last day there is little Jose Jurado, of the Argentine, tied for first place with Phil Perkins, the B. B. M. G., which is slang for British business man's golfer.

And who is in third place but Olin Dutra, another golfer of Spanish descent from California.

When you get right down to it there is more color in this final drive than any open golf championship has ever known, whether played in Scotland, England, the United States or the Fiji islands. It is reeking with color. There are eight golfers left for the final 36-hole charge and every one of them is not only a great golfer but swell along on the flashy, colorful side. Here they are—Jurado, Perkins, Dutra, Diegel, Hagen, Sarazen, Cooper and Burke.

The wind-swept atmosphere was electric with thrills at the end of the second day. Phil Perkins, who is a former British amateur champion, has just turned pro. When he turned in a 69 for a 36-hole total of 145 the excitement started.

In turning to the category of business man's golfer, Phil Perkins evidently meant business. He wasn't kidding or spoofing.

But an even greater thrill came when little Jurado added a 71 to his 74 for another 145, and tied for the lead. The golfing friend and golfing companion of the Prince of Wales has been one of the gallery's favorites. He has been hitting the ball perfectly. His swing is a trifle fast but orthodox in every way.

More important, from the gallery's standpoint, is Jurado's tournament manners—his set, serious concentration is always followed by a quick, flashing smile as the stroke comes off. No sign of irritation, no alibi, no complaint, but a magnetic manner that catches and holds the attention of the crowd. That in brief is little Jurado—golfer, competitor and sportsman to the last degree. No wonder the Prince of Wales picked him out as his favorite companion on the links. Nearly always down the middle—a fine iron player—a smooth chip shot and a steady putting stroke—he won't be far away at the end.

"You and Dutra should hold up the Spanish challenge against these Scotch, Americans, Italians and others," I suggested.

ALL ARGENTINE.

"No—no," he said, "not Spanish—Argentine—all Argentine."

In spite of that, with Jurado and Dutra, I could still get a vision of the old invaders and discoverers—De Soto, Balboa, Cortez and Ponce de Leon—and they played brilliant golf through another high, roistering wind over this long, narrow course.

Olin Dutra, from the Monterey peninsula, should have spread-eagled the field. Olin had a 69 on the first day. He was out in 35 today. He was running away from all competition until suddenly he realized that he was strokes ahead—many strokes ahead—and then the old curse of the ancient game came back upon him—tension. He lost his slashing, dashing carefree style as he began to steer the ball to protect his lead. So he came back in 42, wavering and struggling. Olin had played the game for 27 holes. Then he let the game play him.

There is more tradition to this final 36-hole march to golf glory and golf gold than any dream of castles in Spain, haunted as they are by ghosts. For among the survivors there are Gene Sarazen and Walter Hagen, bitter rivals ten years ago.

Nineteen years ago at Brookline when Ouimet beat Vardon and Ray, Walter Hagen had his chance down the final stretch as a kid of 20. He won at Midlothian in 1914. Eighteen years later he is right in the thick of the melee after winning two United States and four British opens. I have never seen him hitting the ball better from tee to green—long and straight.

HAGEN TOUCH.

If he only had the old Hagen putting touch, he would be four strokes in front of the field. Power, punch and control are all there, but there is something missing from the old Hagen touch around the tin cup, especially on the shorter taps. The hands and wrists no longer function as they did ten years ago.

But Hagen remains a dangerous factor. He won his last United States open title at Braeburn, Boston, 13 years ago. Here he is in the middle of the big party with the best United States showing he has made in years.

Then there is Leo Diegel, nervous, high-strung, away like a rabbit after every shot. I saw Leo take over the championship at Inverness 12 years ago and then blow it down the stretch. He had the title in his hand until someone sneezed at the top of his swing on the thirteenth hole, where Leo took a 7 and then lost by one stroke.

With Gene Sarazen and Bill Burke, the two open champions of Great Britain and the United States, still among the pack, you can sense the excitement that has come upon Fresh Meadow in the final stretch. And there is also Light Horse Harry Cooper, who won the $10,000 Los Angeles tournament and tied with Tommy Armour at Oakmont in 1927.

The final day at Fresh Meadow means a combination of color, tradition and golfing skill. There has never been such a combination in the history of golf—so many stars with so much flame attached to their personalities and their performances.

SAYS BOBBY JONES.

"I've never seen anything like this before," Bobby Jones said. "It will be a big story—whoever wins."

The big test comes in the last two rounds. The third round is a terrific strain. The fourth round is even worse as there should be at least four survivors left for the afternoon march. I still think Gene Sarazen must be reckoned with in his battle for two titles within a month's time.

Did you pause for a moment to realize there are four national champions left in this keen and eager pace—Burke, champion of the United States; Sarazen, champion of Great Britain; Hagen, champion of Canada, and Jurado, champion of the Argentine.

A LASTING THREAT.

Who ever saw a cast like that, mixed in with four others just about as good? How will it finish? They had better not blow against Sarazen, especially if he can come upon one of his old-time finishes. He has yet to hit the pace he showed at Sandwich. He has yet to reach the top of his game, and he is still confident.

Phil Perkins will remain a distinct threat to the last putt. He is hitting the ball a long, long way with that powerful wrist lash. His putting touch is perfect. He likes the wind. He can play a lot of golf.

Jurado and Dutra must throw aside their tension and let their swings take care of the ultimate result.

Second to Charles ranked Clyde Coffman, University of Kansas junior, not so big, but good, who collected 3,804.97475 points with Bausch back in third place with 3,772.6520 points, but with some of his favorite events coming up tomorrow morning.

Miller Is Signed By Chattanooga

CHATTANOOGA, Tenn., June 24. (AP)—Frank Miller, a right-handed pitcher, formerly with the Indianapolis club of the American association and until recently with the Nashville Volunteers, was signed today by the Chattanooga Lookouts.

Miller was taken on by the local club to replace Hensel Hulvey, who received a broken jaw when hit on the face by a foul ball from the bat of Mule Shirley, Vol first baseman, in last night's game.

Club Physician Fletcher stated today that Hulvey would be out for three weeks.

Skeeters To Hold Shoot Here Today

The Atlanta Skeet Club will hold its regular practice shoot this afternoon at 2:30. A cordial invitation is extended to all shotgun enthusiasts to visit the club below Adamsville and take part in the program.

Shooters say it has been proven in a large number of cases that skeet has improved the shooting and gun handling of a large number of novices.

RISKO SLASHES WAY TO VERDICT IN WALKER BOUT

Toy Bulldog Unable To Cope With Slam-Bang Attack of Baker.

By Alan Smith.

MUNICIPAL STADIUM, CLEVELAND, Ohio, June 24.—(UP)—A bull-rushing, hard-punching Johnny Risko, Cleveland's baker boy, sidetracked the heavyweight championship aspirations of Mickey Walker by slamming his way to a 12-round victory over the "Toy Bulldog" here tonight.

While 20,000 fans roared their approval, Risko, the old trial horse, staged a sensational come-back. He slugged, punched and rushed his way to a clear-cut victory over the former ruler of the welter and middleweights, and the man who held the new heavyweight champion, Jack Sharkey, to a draw.

It was Risko all the way. Walker, appearing tired, fat and flabby, was unable to combat the slam-bang attack of Risko. Only in the tenth and eleventh rounds did Mickey display the class that made him a champion. Flashing a left hook and a right cross, he peppered Risko's midriff and had the Cleveland boy staggering.

But Risko came back in the final round to clinch the decision—a unanimous one. Rushing from his corner, he drove Walker to the ropes with rights and lefts to the head and body. The hardest punch of the fight was landed by Risko in this final stanza, an overhand punch to the side of the face that sent Walker whirling.

The United Press score card gave Risko six rounds, Walker four and two even.

Walker went to the floor in the second round when Risko's left uppercut caught him under the chin. Mickey got up without a count but he was groggy and Risko piled up plenty of points in this round. He also won the first by a wide margin.

Walker, apparently, was eliminated from the list of contenders for the crown that now rests upon Sharkey's head. Walker was game to the last but he was unable to overcome the superior stamina, the harder punching and aggressiveness of Risko.

Walker weighed 171 1-2, Risko, 198 1-2.

HARRIS WINS.

MEMPHIS, Tenn., June 24.—(AP)—Chasteen Harris, who lost his southern golf crown in the recent tournament at Birmingham, won the Memphis title today, defeating Leroy Taylor, 5 and 4.

State Tennis Is Stopped By Rain

SAVANNAH, Ga., June 24.—(AP)—Rain stopped the semi-finals of the men's doubles in the Georgia state tennis tournament here this afternoon before they were completed. When the matches were halted, Robert Little, of Tuscaloosa, Ala., and Billy Reese, of Atlanta, were leading Fred Andrews, of Birmingham, and Robert Stewart, of Pensacola, two sets to one. In the other match, Jack Mooney and Jimmy Halverstadt, both of Atlanta, had won the first two sets from Harvey Harris, of Raleigh, N. C., and George French, of Atlanta.

QUEEN HELEN, VINES ADVANCE

By Frank H. King,
Associated Press Staff Writer.

WIMBLEDON, England, June 24. (AP)—Play progressed into the quarter-final round of men and women singles of the Wimbledon championships today.

The two American titleholders, Mrs. Helen Wills Moody and Ellsworth Vines Jr., continued their impressive play.

Mrs. Moody, seeking her fifth Wimbledon title, easily disposed of the English player, Mrs. Kitty McKane Godfree, 6-3, 6-0, and Vines won from I. Aoki, of the Japanese Davis cup squad, 6-2, 3-6, 6-3, 6-2.

SINGLES VICTIM.

Sarah Palfrey was the American singles victim of the day, the little Boston miss falling before Betty Nuthall, once England's leading star, 8-6, 9-7. Her defeat left only Mrs. Moody and Helen Jacobs in the last eight of women's singles. Miss Jacobs winning from Mrs. C. H. Jameson, of England, 6-1, 6-2.

In men's doubles two American teams advanced and one fell. Wilmer Allison and John Van Ryn, former Wimbledon champions and United States Davis cup pair, won from A. Brown and R. N. Tinkler, of England, in a second round match, 7-5, 6-2, 6-4, and Sidney B. Wood Jr., and Gregory Mangin won from Ernest Maier, of Spain, and H. F. Fisher, of England, 4-6, 6-3, 6-4, 6-4.

FRENCHMEN WIN.

Frank Shields, paired with the South African, Dr. P. D. B. Spence, won in the first round from Nigel Sharpe and J. D. P. Wheatley, of England, 6-2, 6-3, 3-6, 6-1, but then ran afoul of Jacques Brugnon and Jean Borotra, veteran French pair, in the second round and were put out, 11-9, 6-0, 6-2.

The American teams also advanced in women's doubles. Miss Palfrey and her Wightman cup partner, Mrs. L. A. Harper, defeated Mrs. M. Stork and Mrs. N. B. Edwards, of England, 6-4, 6-2, and Miss Jacobs and Elizabeth Ryan won from Mrs. C. O. Tucker and Mrs. J. H. Whitecroft, also of England, 6-1, 6-2. Both matches were in the second round.

Mrs. Dorothy Endrus Burke, paired with the young Italian player, L. Valerio, was eliminated in the first round of women's doubles by Mrs. J. D. Pittman and Joan Ridley, of England, 3-6, 6-3, 6-1.

Peabody Handicap Is Feature Today

NEW YORK, June 24.—(AP)—With Latonia opening its gates for a 31-day meeting, more than $25,000 will be distributed in four stake races on the three major tracks tomorrow.

The $10,000 Francis S. Peabody Memorial handicap with ten starters at Washington Park heads the list of feature races. Latonia offers as its opening attraction the $5,000 added Clipsetta stakes for two-year-old fillies while the Great American stakes for juveniles and the Brookdale handicap for older horses, worth $4,000 each, top the card at Aqueduct.

Gallant Knight, which recently stepped a mile in 1:35 3-5 will carry the top weight of 123 pounds and the bulk of the public support in the Washington Park feature.

The field also includes Osculator, second in the Withers, Belmont stakes and American derby, Spanish Play, Plucky Play, Pittsburgh and five other high class handicap performers.

The Clipsetta stakes has attracted 18 juvenile fillies with Sandy Bill, the best two-year-old in the east, and four others named for the Great American stakes. Six older horses have been selected to face the starter in the Brookdale.

Long shots studded the programs at Aqueduct and Washington Park today. For the most part public choices triumphed at the New York course but in the fourth race, The Crane, ridden by Johnny Gilbert, galloped home in front to pay 50 to 1. Gilbert also rode All Ablaze, winner of the curtain raiser.

ROSEY WINS.

NEW YORK, June 24.—(AP)—Jack Rosenberg, of New York, won a close decision over Paulie Walker, Jersey City middleweight, in a fast ten-round bout at the Coney Island Stadium tonight. The decision was unpopular with the crowd. Rosenberg weighed 153, Walker 149.

GORDON STREET AND NORTHWEST BATTLE TODAY

Teams Meet With Championship of First Half at Stake.

Gordon Street Baptist and Northwest Atlanta playing at Mosley Park are drawing interest among the amateur baseball teams this afternoon in a double-header. The first game opens play in the second half and the final can decide the first half winner. Gordon Street Baptist can clinch the first half by winning, while a victory for the Northwesterners will give them a tie.

North Side fans are expected to witness the Rock Springs Presbyterian-Inman Park Baptist contest at Piedmont Park, as this promises to be one of the best games of the day. Players and fans are invited to attend the barbecue sponsored by the Presbyterian church.

Grace Methodist and J. O. Y. Class clash in what should be the best of the Sewanee league series. The teams finished the first half as runner-up and leader, respectively, and the outcome of this game will go a long way toward naming the second half winner.

Fulton league fans will be interested in the outcome of the Virginia Avenue Baptist-Woodward Avenue Baptist game, as the former won in the first half and the latter has been strengthened by several additional players. The complete schedule follows:

DIXIE LEAGUE.

J. L. Key Class vs. North Side Park at Steel Plant.

North Atlanta Bap. vs. Mayson Meth., at Willingham Park.

Northwest Atlanta vs. Gordon Street Bap., at Mosley Park.

SEWANEE LEAGUE.

Inman Yards Bap. vs. East End Meth., at Decatur, Ga.

Bethany vs. Confederate Ave., at Chosewood Park.

Grace Meth. vs. J. O. Y. Class at Brisbane Park.

PIEDMONT LEAGUE.

Inman Park Bap. vs. Rock Springs Presby. at S. W. Piedmont.

Temple Grove vs. Alpha Class at Grant Park, No. 1.

FULTON LEAGUE.

Capitol View Meth. vs. Underwood Meth. at Waterworks.

Fortified Hills vs. Bethany Jr., at Henry Grady.

Ousley Chapel vs. Woodlawn Presby., at Maddox Park.

Virginia Ave. Bap. vs. Woodward Ave. Bap. at Grant Park, No. 2.

City League.

The final schedule of games in the City league will be played this afternoon and the following week they start the chase all over again, probably with some new material in the league. Douglasville has lost just one game so far, and so has Fisher Body. Fisher has one game with City Hall to make up in addition to their game this week with Douglasville. If they win both they will beat out Douglasville for the half. Douglasville will have a hard time winning from Fisher as they have been playing fine ball lately. The outcome of the other games will not affect the results of the first half. Marietta and Whittier should show up better during the second half.

The Trammell Scott league starts over again this week. Ten games have been played making two rounds, and Standard Oil stands at present at the top of the list. They have a postponed game with Southern Bell to play, and as they meet this team today a double-header will be played. The first game will be the final game of the first half championship and the second game will be the first game of the second half. Naturally they will center their efforts on the first game, as the winning of that contest will put them in the finals this fall.

CITY LEAGUE.

City Hall vs. College Park at College Park.

Hapeville vs. Whittier Mills at Whittier.

Griffin vs. Marietta at Marietta.

Douglasville vs. Fisher Body at Clark University.

SCOTT LEAGUE.

Standard Oil vs. Southern Bell at Northwest Piedmont (two games).

Postoffice vs. Railway Mail at Almand Park.

Exposition Mills vs. Anthony Buick at Northeast Piedmont.

Southwest.

Having completed the first half of the 20-game schedule, teams affiliated with the Southwest Sunday School Athletic Association will start on the second 10 games this afternoon on diamonds scattered throughout the West End. A few postponed games from the first half are still to be played off.

In the Western league Calvary Methodists will meet the Gordon Street Presbyterians at the Central Christian diamond in what should be a first-class game. Both teams are strong.

Ben Hill meets the Central Presbyterian Coed class team. Waits, Ben Hill's leading twirler, will occupy the mound against Camp.

Cascade Baptists and Center Hill play a double-header at John A. White, the first being a postponed game for the first half. Hollingsworth, of Cascade, will face Ellis on the mound.

In the Southern league, Park Street and Oakland City Baptists will provide the feature game when they meet at Joe Brown. Elliott will pitch for Oakland City while Park Street will rely on King.

Schedule for this afternoon:

WESTERN LEAGUE.

Calvary Methodists vs. Gordon St. Presbyterians at Central Christian diamond.

Central Presby. Coed vs. Ben Hill at Ben Hill.

Center Hill vs. Cascade Baptists at John A. White (two games).

SOUTHERN LEAGUE.

Central Christians vs. Stewart Avenue Methodists at Adair Park.

Oakland City Baptists vs. Park Street Methodists at Joe Brown.

Lakewood baptists vs. Oakland City Methodists at Oakland City.

Discovered--A Fighter Who Beats Mr. Tunney

Emory Boxer Studies Law, Dabbles in Amateur Theatricals and Poetry.

By Jimmy Jones.

The amiable and unctuous Mr. Jay Thomas, who can spot a prospective pugilist or bathing beauty queen at 40 paces blindfolded, is always turning up with some interesting character about the town that only a Thomas could discover. One can never tell whether Mr. Thomas is in quest of box fighters or baby dolls for his exploitation genius, so the other afternoon when we accompanied him on one of his daily sorties, we asked him to please be specific so that we would not overlook anything.

"On this particular afternoon," said Mr. Thomas with that slow Missouri drawl of his, "I'm going to introduce you to the most erudite boxer I know of besides Gene Tunney and maybe he'll lend you a few new words for your vocabulary."

That sounded interesting, although it would have been decidedly more romantic to be introduced to one of Mr. Thomas' bathing beauties.

The young man to whom he referred happened to be George Carroll, Emory University lightweight boxer and who is now pursuing his law degree at that institution. We hadn't talked with Carroll long before he began to spring such words as "unique" and "illusion" and "infinitesimal," not exactly tongue twisters, but exceedingly strange phraseology not "right" for veterans to demand immediate payment. He urged passage of the "widows and orphans" bill by the senate. It has been passed by the house of representatives and is in a committee of the senate.

DECATUR MAYOR HEAD OF LEGION IN GEORGIA

Miss Leila Summerall, Waycross, Elected President of Ladies' Auxiliary.

"After the national convention has spoken and expressed its views," the legislative chairman, a resident of Kansas, said, "it doesn't behoove any post or any legionnaire to do any backbiting. Don't jump on us who are carrying the mandate you gave us to carry out the policies of the legion."

"War, originally, was carried on for conquest and plunder," Mr. Colmery said, "but this idea has now been abandoned and war is engaged in only for national defense.

Not Right.

"It isn't right now for us to ask for cash payment of adjusted service certificates," he declared. "If others are—stealing let us assume—from the government, that does not justify our degrading our service or our citizenship.

"In times of stress like these we who constitute three or four per cent of the American people should conduct ourselves with the same degree of fairness we have in our whole legislative program."

Mrs. P. I. Dixon, Thomasville, was elected first vice president of the auxiliary; Mrs. Steve Cocke, Dawson, second vice president; Mrs. Joseph Toomey, Atlanta, national executive committeewoman, and Mrs. Harry Wallerstein, Atlanta, alternate committeewoman; Mrs. J. B. Johnson, Valdosta, historian; Mrs. H. A. Miller, Ashburn, chaplain.

These officers succeed Mrs. Toomey, president Mrs. A. Flew Holt Jr., Macon, second vice president; Mrs. E. R. Harris, Winder, historian; Mrs. H. A. Miller, chaplain; Mrs. E. F. Travis, national executive committeewoman, and Mrs. Harvey J. Kennedy, Barnesville, alternate.

Candler's Record.

Mr. Candler had an outstanding war record. He enlisted as a private in 1917 and by November, 1918, had won the rank of captain. He was a member of the 328th infantry, 82nd division. A. E. F., and was in command of Company D of that branch during the Saint Miheil and Meuse-Argonne offensives. He was wounded in action in the Saint Miheil battle.

He received two citations for bravery beyond the call of duty in the Meuse-Argonne battle.

The new commander graduated from Davidson College in 1907 and later from the Atlanta Law school. He has practiced law since 1913 except for two years when he was in the army.

He served that post as adjutant and for the past three years as commander. He was chairman of the Georgia Legion's membership committee during the past year.

In 1928 he was a member of the executive committee of the Young Men's Democratic League of Georgia and took an active part in the presidential campaign of that year. He is a trustee of Davidson College and Agnes Scott College.

Sidney Camp, of Newnan, was nominated for the post of commander, but withdrew during the roll call, making the election of Mr. Candler unanimous.

Dr. Joseph M. Toomey, Atlanta, historian, and James A. Bankston, Atlanta, treasurer, were re-elected. R. C. Gresham, Moultrie, was elected chaplain, succeeding Rev. Earl H. Dunn.

Georgia Products Dinner.

Products of Georgia's fertile fields and dewy mountains furnished a feast tonight for hundreds of men and women of the American Legion at the Georgia products dinner in Hotel Dempsey, and a subject for the speech of Governor Russell.

The new Walter Little memorial room in the Dempsey was dedicated in memory of the hotel manager who lost his life in the World War.

In his address, the last of the evening, and one of the shortest, the governor, who was an honor guest, discussed the versatility of Georgia's productive potentialities.

"We are all proud of Georgia," he said. "We all like to say she is larger in area than any other state east of the Mississippi and glory in her illustrious history. . . . Georgia has a most remarkable topography, from the mountains in the north to the great territory that residents of the coast like to call the coastal empire.

"Our state is a veritable empire. It has been truly said you could build a wall around it and we would not suffer. Its soil will grow any vegetation except the strictly tropical type, and its resources in minerals are marvelous.

"Only recently we have recognized the value of keeping in our state the $60,000,000 tribute we pay to sister states annually for what could be produced in our own state. This depression will not have been in vain if we have learned how to live at home. . . .

"We will be unworthy sons of worthy sires if we do not come out of this depression the empire state—not of the south—but of the nation, and I believe that with a great constructive force like the American Legion in our state, we will not fall short of that goal."

At the morning session of the Legion meeting Frank D. Stapleton, of Albany, chairman of the committee on awards, announced the winners of the various trophies.

Frank P. Andrews, Thomaston, commander of the sixth district, won the district commander's general excellence cup, offered by Basil Stockbridge, former state commander.

The cup offered by William Parker Jr., another former state commander for the district having the best record for youths' activities went to the eleventh district, composed of posts from Valdosta, Waycross, Brunswick, Douglas, Adel and other towns.

Service Trophy.

The Louis S. Moore community service trophy presented by the T. L. Spence post of Thomasville went to Valdosta post No. 13, while nine other posts, including the Harold Byrd Post No. 64; Richmond Post, No. 63, of Augusta; Ivey Woodward Post, No. 127, of Buford; Baxter L. Schaus Post, No. 75, LaGrange; Allen R. Fleming Jr. Post, No. 20, Athens; Albany Post, No. 41; Paul E. Bolding Post, Gainesville; Pete Thurston Post, No. 81, Thomaston, and the Lauren County Post, No. 17, at Dublin, in the order named will receive citations from the national commander for the excellence of their community service work.

Bond, of Augusta, was awarded the district membership trophy for the district obtaining the highest percentage of its membership quota, while the trophy presented by Paul Ambrose, of Macon, was awarded to F. E. Ogabrels, of Toccoa, commander of the ninth district, for the district having the greatest increase in membership during the year.

The Paul E. Bolding Post, at Gainesville, won the Frank Kempton award for having the largest delegation present at the national convention in Detroit, while the T. L. Spence Post won the Joe Carr trophy for outstanding work in assisting its auxiliary. The Joe Carr trophy for the auxiliary rendering greatest assistance to its post went to the Rome auxiliary.

Barney J. Harris, of Augusta, was awarded a gold watch offered by the grand voiture of the Forty and Eight Society for obtaining the greatest number of members during the year. Mr. Harris was credited with 148.

The Atlanta drum and bugle corps won first prize in a competition on downtown streets late today. Savannah won second place. Four corps took part in the competition.

SAVANNAH CHAMBERS IN JOINT BOARD MEET

Directors of Both Bodies Hear Reports and Plans for Future.

SAVANNAH, Ga., June 24.—The boards of directors of the Chamber of Commerce and Junior Chamber of Commerce held a meeting on Friday at the Hotel Savannah, Porter G. Pierpont, president of the senior chamber, presided.

There was a talk by Dr. Charles H. Herty on his paper-making experiments in Savannah. He makes paper from pine-tree pulp. It was the most comprehensive report most of the members had heard from the lips of the inventor and chemist.

Judge Gordan Saussy, chairman of the committee to celebrate the bicentennial of Georgia at Savannah next year, outlined his plans and showed what had been done. There is to be a big pageant with historical features. The different organizations of Savannah have been assigned certain parts in the show and it is expected it will be offered in a most interesting way.

George L. Googe, representative of organized labor on the Savannah board of aldermen, gave an outline of what is proposed for Labor Day observance. He said that union labor had the most comprehensive and ambitious plans for observing Labor Day that had been considered in many years. There are to be big parades in the city and the program is to end in the late afternoon and evening at Savannah Beach.

Mr. Pierpont and W. J. Brady, president of the junior chamber, outlined recent activities of these two bodies with direct reference to the effort Savannah is making to get statewide and nation-wide conventions for 1933, bicentennial year. It was reported that there will be on an average of one convention a week in Savannah next year.

The meeting was enthusiastic and enjoyable, and the officers were complimented by the directors on the fine showing made.

MASONS OF 2 STATES MEET AT HEPHZIBAH

General Travis, of Savannah, Is Principal Speaker at Festival.

HEPHZIBAH, Ga., June 24.—(AP) The part played by Masons and Masonry in the early colonial days was outlined by Brigadier General Robert J. Travis, of Savannah, Ga., to Masons of two states here today to observe the feast of St. John the Baptist, one of the two patron saints of the Masonic order.

Officials high in Masonic and political life attending included Governor Richard B. Russell, of Georgia, and Governor Ibra C. Blackwood, of South Carolina.

Richmond lodge, No. 412, F. & A. M., is in charge of the ceremonies. The program included greetings from the Most Worshipful Joseph A. Moore, grand master of the grand lodge of Georgia, and presentation of W. A. Giles, past grand master of the grand lodge of South Carolina.

Past Grand Master Travis will deliver the main address of the day while short talks will be given by Governor Russell, Governor Blackwood and others.

A barbecue at 6 p. m. and a festival beginning at 7:30 p. m. concluded the program.

"When our immigrant fathers came to these shores," General Travis said, ". . . the overwhelming majority of them were Masons and brought with them their Masonic altars and placed thereon the Bible, always borne in every lodge of Masons."

"It was but natural that those who were chief among the Masons were selected as their leaders when the crisis of the American revolution approached.

"You have read of the incident in Boston harbor when the tea was thrown overboard. If you will look at the minutes of St. Andrew's lodge in the city of Boston, still in existence, you will see that the lodge on the night of this memorable incident, adjourned from its meeting place in Green Dragon tavern with the cryptic statement that it had important business to perform. The entire page of the minutes is surrounded with a border of "Ts."

"Again you have read of the ride of Paul Revere. Has it ever occurred to your minds strange that this comparitively unknown citizen Revere could procure such universal compliance with his direction when such compliance might mean possible conviction for treason? The response is better understood when you know that Paul Revere was grand master of the state of Massachusetts.

"It may surprise you to know that while the grand lodges of the United States have never united into one supreme grand lodge for fear its power might be used for political purposes yet we maintain today a system like to that in existence during the revolution, that every grand lodge in America has its own duly commissioned representative at every other lodge, so that in a supreme crisis if needs be, . . . there may be co operation among Masons.

"Today that frame work lies unused, . . ., but surrounded as we are by dangers, within and without, disturbed by the greatest financial depression within the memory of man . . . we feel that in a crisis the Masonry which proved true to its God and true to its country a century and a half ago will prove faithful to it God and faithful to its country in any crisis that may develop."

'Lone Texan,' Now Wed for Year, Thanks Macon Mayor for Wife

MACON, Ga., June 24.—(AP)—Lee C. Flewellen, who enlisted the aid of Mayor G. Gleen Toole in finding a suitable wife for a "lone Texan" and who married Miss Ruby Lee Lockhart, of Macon, as a result, wrote to Mayor Toole on the first anniversary of their wedding that "we have never been so happy as we have been since our wedding on June 19, 1931."

Last year Mr. Flewellen wrote Toole from San Antonio, Texas, asking the mayor to assist him in finding "a suitable wife." The mayor had the letter published and Flewellen received scores of replies, selecting one from them Miss Lockhart. His letter in part:

"This is to inform you that the writer of this letter is the lone Texan who, through the help of you and your secretary, was able to find and marry Miss Ruby Lee Lockhart, the Georgia peach of the state of Georgia. We wish to thank you as man and wife for the help you extended to us in getting us together.

"I wish to say a word in behalf of my wife. She is just adorable. She not only fills her place in the home, but is able to handle the office work as well. She is one of the most careful drivers to sit behind a steering wheel. We both wish to tell you that we have never been so happy as we have been since our wedding on June 19, 1931."

Miss Whitehead and Mr. Persall Wed at Lovely Home Ceremony

Exquisite elegance marked the marriage of Miss Katisue Whitehead and John Thomas Persall Jr., which was solemnized Friday afternoon at 3 o'clock at the home of the bride's parents, Dr. and Mrs. A. L. Whitehead, on Piedmont road. The ceremony was performed by Dr. Robert C. Rhodes, professor at Emory University, in the presence of a representative gathering of relatives and friends.

An improvised altar banked with stately palms and ferns occupied a central position in the living room. Pedestal baskets filled with Easter and calla lilies, alternated with tall, sloping cathedral candelabra holding white burning tapers. Clusters of lilies tied with white tulle marked the aisle posts. Throughout the home was an effective arrangement of palms, ferns and white flowers.

Preceding the ceremony, "For You Alone" and "Till the Sands of the Desert Grow Cold" were sung by Mrs. Gus Cooper. The "Bridal Chorus" from "Lohengrin" was rendered as a processional and Mendelssohn's "Wedding March" followed the ceremony, with Miss Katherine Kamper at the piano and Charles Campbell on the violin. During the taking of the vows "Love's Awakening," by Moskowski, was softly played.

The ribbon bearers descended the steps in pairs, including Mary Jane Gentry, Eleanor Kent, Betty Watson and Jean Cox, who were dressed in pastel chiffon frocks. The flower girl, Joan Gentry, wore shell-pink chiffon and carried an old-fashioned nosegay.

The maid of honor, Miss Edna Whitehead, sister of the bride and her only attendant, wore pink mousseline de soie featuring a flared skirt with a high waistline and a sash of blue taffeta. A pink hat trimmed with blue and pink slippers completed her costume. She carried a bouquet of pastel-shaded flowers tied with pastel moire taffeta.

The best man was William S. Mitchell and the ushers were John Mooney, of Statesboro, and John Harper, of Copper Hill, Tenn.

Lovely Bride.

The bride was a picture of brunet loveliness in an ensemble of white briella, becomingly fashioned with blouse and jacket of Italian wool lace, featuring three-quarter length sleeves. She wore a modish white hat of French felt and white slippers with white accessories completed her costume. She carried a gorgeous bouquet of valley lilies and Joan Hill roses.

An informal reception was held immediately following the ceremony. Assisting in entertaining were Mesdames Justus Kilian, D. J. Moriarity, H. D. Groves, William Mitchell, Miss Safford Harris, of Cordele, Ga.; Misses Claudius Layton, Ruth Stewart, Delphine Jones and Mrs. Jefferson Reed.

Mrs. A. L. Whitehead was gowned in blue and white chiffon and wore a shoulder spray of pink rosebuds and valley lilies. Mrs. C. M. Stanback, maternal aunt of the bride, was gowned in blue-flowered chiffon and wore a shoulder spray of yellow rosebuds and valley lilies.

The lace-covered table in the dining room had for its centerpiece a three-tiered bride's cake richly embossed in roses and valley lilies and topped with a miniature bride and groom. This miniature decoration had graced the bride's cake at the recent marriage of Mr. and Mrs. William S. Mitchell. Punch was served from silver punch bowls placed on the porch and terrace by Miss Margaret Eberhart and Mrs. Harry E. Keith, of New York city.

Mr. Persall and his bride left for a motor trip to the mountains of North Carolina. Mrs. Persall traveled in an ensemble of green crepe. Her hat was an imported model of black felt trimmed with green. Black slippers and accessories with a corsage of valley lilies and Joan Hill roses completed her costume.

Culbertson on Contract

Deceptive Defense.

BY ELY CULBERTSON,
World's Champion Player and Greatest Card Analyst

When the bidding by the Declarer and his partner has been accurate and based upon the values held, the problem faced by the defending players of finding the trick to defeat the contract is frequently far from simple. Sometimes the only means of attaining this end is to create in the mind of the Declarer a wrong impression of distribution that will cause him to play the hand in such a manner as to create a defensive trick where it does not exist.

An interesting example of deceptive defense occurred in a recent Rubber game at Crockford's Club in New York.

East—Dealer.
Both sides vulnerable.

	♠ 10 4 3 2 ♡ K Q 10 7 5 ◇ Q ♣ J 7 6
♠ Q 5 ♡ J 4 3 ◇ K J 10 6 5 4 ♣ A 9	N W E S	♠ A K 6 ♡ 9 8 ◇ A 3 2 ♣ K Q 10 8 2
	♠ J 9 8 7 ♡ A 6 2 ◇ 9 8 7 ♣ 5 4 3

The Bidding:

(Figures after bids in table refer to numbered explanatory paragraphs.)

South	West	North	East
			1♣
Pass	1◇ (1)	Pass	3◇ (2)
Pass	4◇ (3)	Pass	5◇ (4)
Pass	Pass	Pass

1—The correct response. The length of the diamond suit suggests the hand will play more safely at a suit, but there is no need to hurry as the final declaration can be determined by East's further bidding. East is sure to make a further bid, unless his hand is an absolute minimum.

2—An alternative bid with East would be two notrump, but the weakness of the heart suit makes the support of partner's bid suit more advisable, particularly in view of the fact that the players are vulnerable.

3—West's trump holding and the fact that the hand contains 2 1-2 honor tricks warrant a Rebid.

4—With passing opponents, adequate trump support and great honor strength, East, of course, bids for game.

Against the contract of five diamonds, North opened the heart King, and the South player, when the Dummy was exposed, reasoned that the problem of defense was entirely up to him. West's Rebid and the honors shown on the table strongly suggested that the Declarer held the club Ace. He certainly held five and probably six diamonds. If the diamonds held in West's hand were a sequence headed by Queen-Knave, nothing could be done, but if West held the King-Knave of diamonds, there was a possibility that the ruse South planned would succeed. Therefore, he overtook the heart King and returned the deuce of that suit, seeking to create in the mind of the Declarer the impression that he held only two hearts and could over-ruff any trump in the Dummy except the Ace. North won this trick, and he also, as his partner hoped, was deceived. He led another round of hearts, hoping that it might be ruffed by a small diamond in the Dummy. West read the situation as South had planned, trumped with the Ace, and decided that his only chance now of losing no tricks in diamonds was to lead a small diamond from the Dummy and finesse against South for the Queen. This plan was followed. North's singleton Queen made, and the contract defeated 1 trick, due to the clever defense tactics of South, whereby the Declarer was led into a trap.

TODAY'S POINTER.

The best defense at Contract not only requires the winning of every obvious trick, but, whenever possible, the creation of less obvious tricks through strategy.

TOMORROW'S HAND.

The bidding and play of the hand printed below will be discussed tomorrow:

South—Dealer.
East and West vulnerable.

FRIENDLY COUNSEL

BY CAROLINE CHATFIELD

Problems of general interest submitted by readers will be discussed in this column. Correspondence invited. Your name held in confidence. Write Miss Chatfield, care The Atlanta Constitution.

In addition to love and proper relationships, in addition to domestic comforts and conveniences there are some other things that enter into the making of a happy home. Many of these, however, are beyond the purse of the poor man and as set down here are not meant to make him discontented or lead him to believe that a happy home is beyond his reach. The list that follows is one of luxuries, all highly desirable but in no sense imperative needs.

The first of these luxuries that every family should have is books, not necessarily a fine and costly library with rare printings and hand-done hand-done bindings, just books. A friend of mine is fond of telling how in her childhood she used to go and the night with some young friends who were very poor. It seems that it was not an extraordinary event to have a rickety bed break down under the weight of the extra guest, and for hostess and guest to have to move into another room to find another bed not less rickety, perhaps, but less strained. When she refers to those experiences she always adds, "That was the most delightful home I was ever in. It was full of books and the members of the family had read them and they talked about what was in them." You see the indefinable atmosphere of culture had pervaded this home and the fragrance of it whetted the appetite of the little visitor.

Equally important as the books are the daily papers and some good magazines. In these times when it is the fashion for the literary persons of first-grade talents to write for newspapers and magazines every publication you pick up has in it worthwhile articles of literary merit. No family can afford to neglect to read them. Have you ever entered a home and unconsciously sized up a family by the type of reading material you have seen on the tables? "That's snobbish," you reply. No, it isn't. You know men by the company they keep. Birds of a feather flock together. And it is altogether reasonable to judge the taste of people and the mental attainment of people by the literature they choose to read.

There is a certain magazine that has long been a favorite of the literary elite. Its reputation for "high-browism" is so widespread that it is often remarked that travelers wishing to impress their companion travelers buy this magazine and turn the cover out so its identity may be established and its possessor marked up in the estimation of those that see it. Ridiculous? Yes, but understandable.

An open fire in winter and a bowl of flowers in summer work magic with a drab room and are indispensable to any beauty-loving householder that can afford these luxuries. Each in its turn lends color, life, beauty to a room, and indeed the fire lends motion too; sending out leaping, multicolored flames of warmth and beauty. Would you have a happy home, gather your friends around your fireside on a winter's day, with a kettle singing on the hearth and a tea tray spread out before you. Here is a little foretaste of heaven, with all the sweet intimacy that friendship breathes, with all the subtle warmth of affection, and with the wit-sharpening effect of free and easy conversation in which there is no constraint and no concealment.

Here then is the crux of the matter. People make the home, the people that live and love and work and play in it. About a pivotal personality all these people revolve. That personality is the wife and mother. The material and spiritual standards of that home cannot be higher than hers are.

SOMETHING JUST A LITTLE DIFFERENT.

And of course you'll want several! Cotton frocks promise to be extremely popular this season both in beach and in country life.

And every woman knows she can't have too many frocks for warm weather wear. And what a saving it is when they tub and tub and always come up smiling.

You'll marvel at how simple it is to make this model. The waist has dropped shoulders. The three-piece circular wrapped skirt is attached to the waist.

And think of it—you can fashion it with 3 yards of 39-inch material and 1 yard of binding for the 16-year size. The cost is a mere trifle.

For town, tub silk is a nice medium.

Style No. 427 is designed for sizes 14, 16, 18, 20 years, 36 and 38 inches bust.

JUST NUTS

Sudden Love

By ELIZABETH SANXAY HOLDING INSTALLMENT XXXVI.

"O, let me alone!" she cried. "I said I'd tell you some day . . . Let me alone! I won't tell you anything—now. And if you go to see Jimmy—I'll never forgive you. I'll never marry you—never! You've got to swear you won't try to see him"

"I'll do nothing of the sort. The fellow has some hold over you. And you're so inexperienced you think—"

"Inexperienced?" she repeated, with ineffable bitterness. "There are lots of other things that you don't know anything about. Things—a person like you couldn't know about."

"And where do you imagine I've spent my life?" he asked. "Sitting at home, playing solitaire? Good God! For a kid like you to talk to me about 'experience.'"

Suddenly, incredibly, they were quarreling, with a heat, a vigor utterly foreign to Esmee.

"That fellow's got some hold on you," Michael said. "Or you think he has. You don't know how to handle him. But I do—"

"You'll just keep out of it!" she cried. "You have no right—"

"I have!" he said.

"I have a right to know everything about you," Michael said.

"You haven't. I won't be interfered with."

They said bitter, harsh things to each other.

"You're spoilt," Esmee told him. "That's the trouble. You think you can be just as rude and domineering as you like. Temperamental."

"If I hadn't asked your mother to come with us," said Michael, "I'd relieve you of the irritation and boredom of my temperamental society."

They had reached her house now. Esmee sprang nimbly out. Michael locked the car, and followed her, up the steps of the house. She turned to say something, and something not pleasant, to him, when she noticed a little sedan stop near the corner. The window of the sedan was open; by the light of the street lamp she saw a hand resting on the top of the window.

And it was a hand familiar to her as her own, a slender, boyish hand, grimy, marked by rough work.

"Lew . . ." she thought. "Lew . . . O . . . what does this mean?"

She hesitated so long that Michael rang the bell in the lobby. The latch clicked and they entered, mounted the stairs together in silence.

"If Jimmy could make Lew write that note to Michael," she thought, "perhaps he could make him—"

A thought so awful, so monstrous, came over her that she turned faint, stopped, holding to the bannister.

But just then Mrs. Sully opened the door of the flat, and at the sight of her, strength came back to Esmee.

Mrs. Sully had done her best, but it was a very good best. She had nothing. She was wearing an old black silk dress which Esmee had known for years. She had put a new collar on it. She had evidently tried to remodel a little the old-fashioned skirt, which fitted her stout form too snugly. With her scuffed shoes she could do nothing, but she had dressed her glossy black hair well; and, in her poverty, her dowdiness, her shabbiness, she stood before them in pride, in dignity and happiness.

And Michael saw, as quickly as Esmee, the intolerable touchingness of the poor woman. He banished from his mind the pain and bitterness Esmee had aroused in him. He devoted himself to Mrs. Sully. He knew what was the right tone. He was not the deferential suitor of her daughter. He was interested in Mrs. Sully for herself. He found in her, beneath her curious ineptitude, a long-ignored charm and gayety.

She put on her dreadful hat, and her coat that was faded to a rusty black, and they all went down the stair again. The sedan was not there now. Lew had gone again.

Esmee had already begun to learn that one can endure almost anything, almost without limit. She had to put her horrible fear about Lew aside, and she did. There was no one to whom she could mention it. She sat in Michael's car beside her mother, and she could be glad that Mrs. Sully was having even this hour. God knew what was coming upon the poor woman soon; but she was happy now.

Michael knew where to take her. He never thought of a place adapted to her shabbiness. He knew that she was regally indifferent to her clothes, and he would be so, too. He went to that same restaurant where Esmee had gone with Claire and Twining. The proprietor knew him very well, and Mrs. Sully was treated like a queen. She had a glass of champagne, and her magnificent black eyes were brilliant. She was not witty, not talkative, but Esmee could see what she must have been before the shattering blows dealt by her life had bewildered her. A woman of infinite graciousness and kindness, of warmth and charm and a strange innocence.

"I'll never forget—Michael's being so sweet to her," thought Esmee.

Across the table her eyes met Michael's—and it was as if a flame leaped up in both of them. Their quarrel was utterly forgotten. They looked and looked at each other, and everything was forgotten. They were lost, strayed into some remote world all their own. She smiled at them, her little soft, dazed smile, but he forgot to smile in return. His eyes were tender, but his mouth had a strained look. His dark face was a little pale.

"He loves me!" she thought. "He does love me . . . !"

There was no possibility of making Michael go back to his apartment with them, and let Mrs. Sully and Esmee return alone in a taxi. She did not even suggest it. Michael drove them home, and went upstairs with them; Mrs. Sully went ahead, and he took Esmee's hand, in a grip that made her wince.

For a few moments they all sat in the dingy, dusty little sitting room. Michael was still attentive to Mrs. Sully, but it was hard for him to talk now. He glanced from time to time at Esmee, he tried to smile but his love for her, his passion obsessed him.

"Mrs. Sully," he said, "mind if I take Esmee for a drive? Just for half an hour?"

"I think it would do her good," said Mrs. Sully.

"Then—come along!" said Michael. You'll let me come again, won't you, Mrs. Sully, tomorrow, please!"

She smiled at him, and in her ineffable sympathy for the young lovers, all her terrible ignorance of what love could be.

"I'll bring Esmee back—safe," he said, unsteadily. And she did not know it, but it was a pledge.

"Bring me back safe," Esmee repeated to herself. "Maybe if we could smash into something and both b killed—together—quickly—it would be the best . . ."

She was haunted by the memory of Lew's hand on the window of that sedan. And the monstrous thought would no longer remain undefined. It became clear, it took form, it was clothed in words within her mind.

"Suppose that Micahel was to die by that hand?"

He turned up Riverside drive; he did not speak, or turn his head, but it seemed to her that the very air was charged with the tensity of their emotion. It was a strain, fast growing beyond her endurance, love, terror, delight, dread and despair, all in her heart together. She turned her head, and she saw a sedan behind them.

There were in this city, thousands of cars like that, the traffic on the drive was incessant, this warm night. Why should it be that one particular car . . .?

"I can't leave him!" she thought. "Whatever happens to Michael has got to happen to me, too." And aloud she said, "Michael—let's not go—into the country now."

"Esmee," he said, "I won't . . . I mean . . . I won't even kiss you, Esmee, if you say not. But I—want to be alone and talk to you . . ."

They had already gone across the viaduct; she thought, in a panic, of dark, lonely roads.

"Michael! Turn back!" she cried.

"What's the matter, darling?" he asked, startled.

"Michael—I'm afraid! Michael! Turn back!"

"Afraid, Esmee?"

"Yes! Michael . . ."

"Esmee . . . Not—of me?"

"No . . . O, God, no! Michael, turn back!"

"Then if it's that damned fellow that's worrying you, we won't turn back. Esmee . . . Look here, my little heart's darling, you've let yourself get—"

BY JOHN L. COOLEY.

NEW YORK, June 24.—(AP)—The lower rediscount rate provided meager fare for a thin stock market today, and after an early buying flurry prices sagged heavily.

There was a slight volume increase, although turnover of 772,662 shares was hardly impressive.

An average loss of 1.6 points brought the closing composite within about a point and a half of the bear market low. Numerous pivotal shares were down 2 to 3. United States Steel preferred slumped nearly 4 while Steel common, American Tobacco "B," du Pont and Corn Products yielded a point or more. Auburn was down 9.

Brokerage quarters mentioned the tortuous congressional course of federal relief measure as among the factors that probably made their impression on the day's market.

Chicago's reserve bank promptly followed the cut here by lopping a full per cent from its rate, and bankers pointed out that some of the other leading central institutions might join the movement.

Weekly mercantile reviews reported there had been some stimulation in not only retail and whole trade, but also certain manufacturing lines, reflecting increased purchases in anticipation of the new excises.

Foreign Markets

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS.

London—The reduction in the federal reserve bank rate, and news of a similar movement in the British bank rate soon, together with favorable Lausanne news stimulated prices today on the stock exchange. The closing was firm.

Paris—The cheerful outcome of the Lausanne conference was favorably received on the Bourse and prices were strong. The close firm.

Berlin—Trading on the boerse was sluggish and prices closed generally higher.

NEW YORK, June 24.—(AP)—In the face of a feeble stock list, the bond market held up fairly well today. Prices were only moderately lower at the close.

Dealers described the market as still extremely thin with little urgent selling apparent. Sales totaled $11,261,000, par value, and the average for 60 corporate securities was off 2-10 of a point.

The United States government department advanced substantially at first, with Liberty 3 1-2s reaching a new high for the year. The federals were unable to hold their ground for long.

Some of the railroads, utilities and industrials also turned fairly soft, although the gains and losses were usually small and well distributed.

German government obligations reacted around a point following reports of further uncertainties at the Lausanne conference.

Highlights of Wall Street

NEW YORK, June 24.—With unfavorable factors in the ascendency, the so-called pivotal stocks again touched new low levels today, imparting heaviness to the entire list.

The reduction in the rediscount rate of the Federal Reserve Bank of New York was more than offset by the fresh outbreak of banking trouble in the Chicago district and the passage of the $2,700,000,000 Wagner relief bill by the senate.

One of the most unfavorable developments was further weakness in the general bond market which up to two days ago had been showing firmness in the face of weakness in the share market due to aggressive support from the bond pool.

The further ease in bond prices was accepted as indicating a change in sentiment in important places.

DIVIDENDS IN JEOPARDY.

One of the main factors operating for lower prices in the pivotal stocks is the continued expectation that a number of dividends will be reduced next week.

This accounted for the extreme weakness of American Can common. Atchison also was offered liberally at the expense of price, it being the belief in the Street that the disbursement to shareholders to be ordered next Tuesday by the board would be reduced to a rate of $2 a share annually, if not less.

CIGARET PRICES.

The harmony which prevailed in the tobacco trade about a year ago when cigaret prices were advanced by all the leading manufacturers apparently has disappeared and renewed talk is again heard that wholesale prices of cigarets will be reduced.

BANKS SELLING.

A substantial part of the selling which came into the securities markets today was reported to be from the middle west, which is the latest source of banking trouble.

Quiet liquidation also is being conducted by some of the eastern banking institutions as indicated by the fact that "loans and investments" the last week reported by the New York city members of the Federal Reserve Bank of New York showed a decrease of $183,000,000.

Brewers Are Ready To Spend 20 Millions

NEW YORK, June 24.—(UP)—Brewers throughout the United States are preparing to spend at least $20,000,000 on new equipment and cereals the moment manufacture of beer is legalized, according to a survey published today by the New York Evening Post.

The brewers also stand ready to increase their pay rolls when real beer returns, the survey indicated. Among those questioned was August A. Busch, of St. Louis, who said that his brewery would require additional equipment costing $7,000,000. Jacob Ruppert, of New York, indicated his brewing company would spend $5,000,000 immediately real beer is legalized.

TARZAN THE UNTAMED No. 6

By Edgar Rice Burroughs

Tarzan did not require the evidence of the broken enemy rifle, or the torn and blood-stained cap upon the floor to tell him who had been the perpetrators of this horrid and useless crime.

For a moment he had hoped against hope that the blackened corpse was not that of his mate. But when he saw and recognized the rings upon her fingers, the last ray of hope forsook him.

In silent reverence and love, he buried the poor, charred form in the little garden that had been his mate's pride and joy. Beside it he buried the warriors who had given their lives for their mistress's protection.

Then he searched for a clew that would positively identify the perpetrators of the atrocities committed in his absence. He found it in the markings upon the uniforms of a dozen dead black soldiers.

The Atlanta Constitution,
Atlanta, Ga.

Gentlemen;

On my return to the city today, I was very much gratified by the response I saw everywhere to the Constitution's recent constructive plan to acquaint the public with the desirability of investment in real estate.

The Constitution deserves the support of all Realtors for its interest in their business. Through letters from outstanding people your paper has impressed the public daily with the true value of property.

If the public knew the full facts about real estate it would act at once and newspaper publicity is the best way to acquaint the buying public with these facts.

It will be years before real estate is again offered on such satisfactory terms for the buyer. It is a buyer's market if there ever was one. Not for years has the dollar gone further in property investment and real estate bought now will certainly reward the buyer.

You have my best wishes for your continued success.

Yours very truly,
M. H. Liebman
President.

Success Is Reported In Test of New Fuel

LONDON, June 24.—(UP)—A successful experiment with a new fuel mixture which may be a boon to the coal industry was reported to the Cunard Steamship Line offices tonight by the S. S. Scythia.

The vessel was trying out a new fuel in which oil and pulverized coal are mixed.

"All expectations realized," said the message to the Cunard offices.

The British engineers said they expected the new fuel would have far-reaching effect in rehabilitating the coal industry.

Curtis Is Confident Of Hoax Vindication

FLEMINGTON, N. J., June 24.—(AP)—John Hughes Curtis, Norfolk shipbuilder, scheduled to go on trial Monday charged with misdirecting the search for the kidnaped Lindbergh baby, expressed a belief tonight that he would be vindicated.

Curtis accused the police of refusing to permit him to communicate with his wife, who he said was now ill in Norfolk or with friends.

"Worn by days of such treatment," he said, "I finally wrote the confession which I have repudiated."

Curtis said his friends were coming from Norfolk "to tell that I am a man of character and had no intention of deceiving Colonel Lindbergh or the police."

"I believe I had been in contact with the kidnapers," he said, "and could render a service, but the police held me without legal cause and failed to act on the information I gave."
